Republican State Convention in Session

Delegates Listen to Keynote Speech Delivered by Temporary Chairman Bertrand H. Snell—Platform and Nominations Scheduled For Saturday—Tentative Ticket Headed by Attorney General Ottinger.

Convention Hall, Syracuse, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Republican state convention got under way at 11:50 a. m. today for its initial session, nearly an hour after scheduled time.

H. Edmund Machold, the state chairman, called the 2,000 delegates and alternates to order in the flag-draped gymnasium of Syracuse University. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Charles Wesley Flint, chancellor of the University.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell of St. Lawrence county was chosen temporary chairman. He was escorted to the platform by Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the Assembly, Clarence R. King, Onondaga county Republican leader, and Mrs. Miriam A. Schindler of Albany while the band played "We Won't Get Home Until Morning."

Mr. Snell immediately began his keynote address.

Harmony was the predominant note as the Republican hosts of the Empire State assembled today for the state convention of the party.

May Contest for Senatorship.

Only one real contest loomed and there was a possibility that even this—for United States senator—might not reach the floor of the convention when nominations are made tomorrow. Alanson B. Houghton, United States ambassador to the court of St. James, apparently had the advantage in the race for nomination for the federal toga, his opponent, who was a late starter, being State Senator George R. Fearon of Syracuse.

Aside from formal organization and the appointment of routine committees, the initial session was to be given over to the keynote address of Representative Bertrand H. Snell of Potsdam, personal friend of President Coolidge.

The platform makers will assemble late today and tonight and the document will be presented to the delegates tomorrow. It is understood that the platform will follow closely along the lines of the national platform of the party.

The Tentative Ticket.

The ticket, as tentatively fixed by the slate makers, was as follows:

Governor, Albert Ottinger, New York.

Lieutenant governor, Caleb H. Baumes, Newburgh.

Attorney general, Hamilton J. Ward, Buffalo.

Comptroller, Charles Mullens, Albany.

INSISTED BROTHER-IN-LAW WAS HER HUSBAND.

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—A woman who insisted her brother-in-law was her husband was under arrest today, charged with perjury.

Mrs. Bella Frank, 23, of the Bronx, was separated from her husband, Albert Frank, several years ago and granted alimony of $25 a week, none of which she says she ever received.

Last Tuesday she had a man arrested, saying he was her husband Albert. The man, however, insisted he was Albert's brother, Samuel.

Supreme Court Justice Humphrey, after holding five hearings on the case, yesterday sustained a writ of habeas corpus brought to free the prisoner. Samuel, as the arrested man insister he was named, then demanded the arrest of Mrs. Frank for perjury and her attorney demanded his arrest on a similar charge. Assistant District Attorney Gallagher after hearing several witnesses had Mrs. Frank arrested and declined to entertain a similar charge against Samuel.

Judge Humphrey in announcing his decision said he was convinced Mrs. Frank was attempting a game of "bluff," to bring her real husband to court by holding the brother.

HOOVER TO SPEAK IN MADISON GARDEN OCT. 13

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Herbert Hoover will speak in New York city on October 13 instead of October 17 as originally planned. His address will be delivered in Madison Square Garden and not Carnegie Hall.

Dr. Gates on Vacation.

On Thursday Dr. A. C. Gates left for a vacation of a week or ten days, during which time the doctor will visit the Adirondack mountains, Canada and the New England coast.

First Snow at Malone.

Malone, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—The first snow of this season fell here today, but melted immediately. The temperature was 36.

Japan's Heir Weds Commoner He Met in Washington

Prince Chichibu Marries Miss Setsuko Matsudaira, Establishing Precedent in Selecting His Wife Outside the Peerage.

Tokyo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Precedents were shattered today when Yasuhito, Prince Chichibu, 26 year old heir presumptive to the throne, married Miss Setsuko Matsudaira, 19 year old daughter of the former ambassador of Japan to Washington.

For the first time since the establishment of a hereditary nobility, a prince of the blood went outside the peerage to select his wife. He made the selection under romantic circumstances, falling a victim to her charms when visiting the Japanese embassy in Washington in January, 1927.

The wedding ceremony began at 9 o'clock this morning when the prince and his new princess entered the outer sanctuary before the Kashikodokoro, "the place of awe," in the imperial palace where the spirit of the sun goddess is worshipped as the matrnal ancestor of the imperial house.

To the strains of flute music the doors of the sanctuary were opened, disclosing the sacred metal mirror, one of the three imperial treasures, symbol of the spirit of the sun goddess. There Prince Chichibu made a formal report of the marriage to the goddess and the other deities of the pantheon of which she is the central figure. Then a master of ceremonies handed the divine cup of sake, or rice wine, to the prince and his bride in turn. The actual wedding ceremony was completed when they drank this.

Few Eligible to Witness Ceremony.

Under court ritual only a few princes and princesses of the blood and court ritualists and officials were eligible to witness the ceremony. Setsuko's parents, Tsuneo Matsudaira and his wife, however, were granted imperial permission and attended. No foreigners were present.

Further ceremonies were then held in the Koreiden and Shiden santuaries within the palace to announce the union to the imperial ancestors.

The couple left the imperial palace together at 10:30 o'clock in a horse drawn closed carriage, still wearing their ancient ceremonial robes. The princess' outer kimona was a brilliant Nile green and a gold half crown surmounted an elaborate coiffure of the medieval court.

Marked By Lack of Ostentation

The keynote of the public procession was its lack of ostentation. The crowds lining the streets were composed mostly of school girls. The only escort was a platoon of cavalry. The couple were driven to the prince's Omote-Machi mansion, an occidental style dwelling near the Imperial palace, which is to be their residence.

This evening the couple returned to the Imperial palace, this time in modern dress to receive the congratulations of the emperor and empress. The princess appeared in a Parisian gown and the prince in the military uniform of the guards division.

The foreign diplomatic corps had no share in today's ceremonies. The various ambassadors and ministers and their wives will take part in the later festivities to celebrate the nuptials, probably as guests at a state banquet to be given by the emperor at his Akasaka palace. This will take place after the prince and princess have returned from a tour of certain imperial tombs to further report their union to the spirits of the departed.

Ceremonies Preceding the Event

Today's ceremonies had been preceded by a long series in preparation for the event. The most important of these were the exchange of betrothal gifts on September 14 and that of Wednesday, when the prince formally notified the family of the bride of the date selected for the wedding.

The betrothal gifts were those which custom prescribed, garments for the bride, a fan of cypress wood, the "Tree of the Sun;" two fresh fish "Tai," to the Japanese the King of Fishes, and a cask of specially purified sake. The bride's family sent in return gifts of "Tai" and sake. There had been many purification rites also and ancient ceremonies designed to drive away evil spirits and misfortune.

To overcome the technical obstacle caused by Setsuko's father having no title, she was adopted by her uncle, Viscount Morio Matsudaira, so he could act as her father at the wedding. Tsuneo Matsudaira renounced his right of succession in favor of his younger brother or he might have been Viscount Matsudaira. The Matsudaira family is one of the oldest of feudal Japan.

Radio Fans Want To See McNamee

They Will Have Opportunity to See Famous Announcer at Opening of Electrical and Radio Show at Armory Next Thursday Night.

GRAHAM MC NAMEE

Six years have elapsed since Graham McNamee accepted a job with WEAF and let Fate take its course. That course has led to the very pinnacle of radio fame. McNamee today is not only a great announcer; he is the indispensable announcer.

Indeed, it is not clear just how the world would get along without him. True, the world has struggled along for some years, but the period before radio does not count. Those days were trivial and picayune. Now that wireless is here, McNamee is one of its essential supplements.

If one stops to consider, it must be admitted that a Harvard-Yale football game would be unthinkable without Graham at the microphone. The Army-Navy game might retain its glitter, but would obviously lose its glow. The gala occasions for crew races would not be half so colorful without "Mac." It is his influence over the ether waves that brings the sculls a length forward when the enemy threatens to forge ahead.

"Mac" it is who directs the champion's golf ball, and "Mac" crowns the queens of the tennis courts. McNamee wins the world's series in baseball; McNamee sets up the heavyweight prize fighters; McNamee picks the victorious automobile on the speedways and the bicycle team in the six day wheel marathon.

All this "Mac" does, and more. He does not confine his activities to sports.

Those who have heard "Mac" over the microphone will have an opportunity to see him on the opening night of the Kingston Electrical and Radio Show at the armory October 4, 5 and 6. The first night's program of entertainment will be in charge of McNamee and one of the features will be the famous South Sea Islanders.

There will be over 50 exhibitors showing various electrical appliances and accessories as well as radios and radio equipment. The show will be open afternoons and evenings.

D'Olier Slain, Grand Jury Finds

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—Investigation into the death of William D'Olier, important witness in the Queens county sewer contract investigation, was given new impetus today with the report of the Queens county grand jury that he had been murdered. D'Olier was first believed a suicide.

District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe and police are preparing to push their investigations to determine if possible the identity of those responsible for his death. The grand jury reported that its examination of 58 witnesses failed to reveal the murderer.

D'Olier, president of the sanitation corporation which received subcontracts in the building of Queens county sewers, in which work it is alleged $16,000,000 in graft was taken by various parties, was found shot to death on a lonely road in Queens county September 2. A pistol was lying in the crook of his arm.

Police listed the death as a suicide but on the insistence of D'Olier's widow and other members of his family, an investigation was started which led to the presentation of the case to the grand jury.

D'Olier was to have been a witness in the trial of former Borough President Maurice E. Connolly and Frederick S. Seely, former Queens engineer of sewer design, now under way.

On the night he was killed D'Olier was reported to have had an engagement to meet with others involved in the trials. Whether he attended such a meeting has never been disclosed.

FRUIT GROWERS TO AID FLORIDA SUFFERERS

Los Angeles, Sept. 28 (AP).—California citrus growers have decided to extend aid to Florida hurricane sufferers. Five cars of fruit, two of oranges and three of lemons, will be disposed of in five eastern fruit auctions next Monday and the proceeds turned over to the American Red Cross. Sales will be in New York, Boston, Chicago, and Philadelphia and possibly Cleveland, it was announced.

Smith Assails Republicans for Alleged Inaction

Tells Minnesota Audience There Has Been Absolute Lack of Vigorous Leadership at Washington for Past Seven and One-half Years—Praises Democratic Platform.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 28 (AP).—Leaving behind another attack on the Republican party and administration, this time a triple-barreled assault for alleged inaction on the questions of farm relief and inland waterways and for "whispering", Governor Smith takes to the road again today for the last speech of his western drive for the presidency.

Tomorrow night at Milwaukee, the Democratic presidential candidate will wind up his two weeks' stumping of the middle and far west with an address probably on prohibition. The Democratic state convention at Rochester next Monday, which he also plans to address, then will be his only engagement before returning to Albany for a rest.

Ripping into his Republican opposition, Governor Smith told a crowd that jammed the St. Paul Auditorium last night that there was an "absolute lack of vigorous leadership" at Washington and had been for the last seven and a half years. Because of this, he asserted, Republican platform declarations on farm relief and inland waterways have amounted to nothing more than "glowing promises".

On the other hand, he declared, the Democratic platform "hits the nail squarely on the head" on these subjects and it is from this party that real relief must come.

Smith Charges Into Leaders.

The nominee charged into Chairman Work of the Republican national committee, Secretary Jardine, Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, on the farm relief score, and quoted a statement by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, issued after his Omaha farm speech, as furnishing his best defense from criticisms of that address.

Tackling this question first, after declaring that lack of leadership at Washington had led such western Senators as Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota, and the late Senator La-Follette to "bolt" the Republican party, Governor Smith repeated that he stood for the principle embodied in the McNary-Haugen bill for handling surplus crops. Then he tackled Work.

He referred to him as "the doctor" and said he did not know whether Work spoke for himself, for the National Committee or for the Republican presidential nominee, when, in commenting on the Omaha speech, Work said the Governor had "enunciated a principle which he says he finds in the McNary-Haugen Bill, but which is not the one over which the battle has been fought for the last four years."

"What's the matter with the doctor?" Smith asked. "I'll tell you. The doctor is unable to distinguish between the principle and machinery for making the principle operate. He has tried to put two principles into one thing."

Prices of Wheat and Potatoes.

Turning to a speech by Mr. Jardine at Riverhead, N. Y., last week, the Governor seized on the secretary's remark, that "for several years we have managed to get the farmers a pretty good price for wheat and potatoes."

"A good price for wheat," Smith expostulated. "The secretary is doing a little Moran and Mack stuff. A good price for wheat—a price less than the cost of production."

The nominee took a rap at Nye for lining up with Hoover on farm relief while at the same time favoring the McNary-Haugen Bill and declared his argument and that of Chairman Work is "completely annihilated" by the Norris comment on the Omaha speech.

As for inland waterway legislation, the nominee said Republican efforts along that line "runs parallel with the farm problem, and it could be offered tonight as another exhibition or another example of the glaring need of vigorous leadership in Washington."

Charges Inaction On Waterways.

Taking up the 1920 Republican platform, the Governor said it mentioned a broad and comprehensive plan of inland waterway development, but nothing happened. The same inaction, he said, followed 1924 declarations for "the most feasible waterways from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard and the Gulf of Mexico," and now in 1928 he quoted the Republicans as favoring, as a measure of relief to agriculture, "the continued development of inland waterways."

There was laughter when he added:

"I think what they meant to say was a continuance of the amount of development you have already got."

Challenging another Republican contention that the Washington administration during the last four years initiated a systematic development of the Mississippi, the nominee read the title of an act, "for the control of floods on the Mississippi and its tributaries, and other purposes," and said this was the only legislation he could find in connection with inland waterways as having been enacted.

"The other purpose," he continued with reference to the title, "is a direction to the engineers to prepare a plan."

"So while there's life, there's

Drum Corps Fund Goes Over the Top

All Traveling Expenses of Local American Legion Drum Corps to Texas Have Been Paid—Will Leave Kingston Next Thursday.

The American Legion Drum Corps fund is over the top. Everything is now ready for the pilgrimage of good-will from Kingston, the Gateway to the Catskills, to San Antonio, the Golden City of the Great Southwest.

The fund, which was first endorsed by Judge Clearwater and then sponsored by the citizens' committee of Philip Elting, Harry E. Schirick and Arthur H. Wicks, and endorsed again by E. Frank Flanagan, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and other business men, came almost unsolicited and by voluntary subscription.

A week ago $500 was still needed. Harry Lazarus voluntarily offered to run a benefit picture in Reade's theatre for three days. Although the picture was not well attended on the first two days, the third day was successful. He has turned over to the committee his check for $500.

The charter of the two Pullman cars, the railroad fares and all traveling expenses have been paid to the New York Central Railroad. The drum corps and the accompanying delegation who bought tickets to fill up those berths in the cars that were not going to be used by the drum corps, are now getting ready for next Thursday, October 4, which is the grand day of departure.

The delegation, headed by the drum corps in full uniform, and accompanied by a parade of the executive committee, John D. Schoonmaker, the mayor, the president of the Chamber of Commerce, members of the American Legion and other citizens, will parade next Thursday from North Front and Crown streets to the ferry. The parade will start at 3 p. m. and will go over on the 4:20 ferry. Two cars will be attached on the train leaving Rhinecliff at 5 p. m. This train is one of the crack trains of the New York Central and is making a special stop at Rhinecliff to take on the Legionnaires. At 9:30 a. m. the next morning the boys will be in Cincinnati. That afternoon at Bowling Green, Ky., they will pick up the American Legion special, and will arrive in San Antonio on Sunday night, where they will stay until the following Friday, arriving back in Rhinecliff on Monday, October 15, at 6:55 p. m.

Additional Gifts.

The citizens' committee acknowledges, with many thanks, the following additional subscriptions to the San Antonio fund:

Coolidge Drove Car in Collision

President's Son Driving Car of Gov. Trumbull When It Crashed, Causing Serious Injury to the Other Driver.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 28 (AP).—John Coolidge, son of the president, was driving Governor John H. Trumbull's machine when it collided with a car driven by Wilfred Veno, professional hockey player, in this city yesterday morning, according to the report of the accident filed in the fifth police precinct today by the officer who investigated the crash.

The report described Coolidge as the driver of "vehicle number two" and the explanation of the accident is that "vehicle number two traveling south on Livingston street struck vehicle number one going west on Lawrence street, in the right rear causing vehicle number one to turn in the opposite direction and cause the damage."

Veno was thrown against the front of his car and had to be taken to a hospital where his name is in the danger list. He is suffering with a fractured skull. His mother received bruises about the body and face.

John Coolidge was on his way to work in the New Haven Railroad office after having spent the night with his mother, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, as guests at the home of Governor and Mrs. John H. Trumbull in Plainville. The crash occurred yesterday morning, almost in front of the home of Prof. Benjamin W. Bacon, where young Coolidge is living while working here.

At the end of his day's work John went to the hospital to inquire about the victims' conditions. Mrs. Coolidge, when she learned of the accident on her return to Northampton with her friend, Mrs. R. B. Hill, and a Secret Service Agent, expressed regret that anyone had been injured but was relieved to hear that her son escaped being hurt.

The deputy coroner questioned Henry Miller, motorcycle officer, who investigated the crash. The coroner said he would treat young Coolidge no differently than any one else when he appears before him today.

Snell Praises Record Of Republican Party

Temporary Chairman of State Convention Compares Record of Republicans and Democrats in the Light of Promise and Performance—Hoover Typifies Best There Is in Coolidge Administration.

Coolidge's Part In The Campaign

Rumored President Contemplates Making at Least One Speech—Expected to Give a Review of the Party Record.

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Frank statements of some party leaders who have called on Herbert Hoover recently concerning the Republican prospects in Massachusetts, the home state of President Coolidge, have served to revive speculation as to what part the chief executive is to play in the presidential campaign.

Mr. Coolidge and his successor as the head of the Republican party have conferred on this subject but there has been no announcement beyond the mere statement that the chief executive wants to be as helpful as possible.

Since that pronouncement word has gone around in some political circles that Mr. Coolidge contemplates making at least one speech before Election Day and, since his party appears to be having its troubles in his own state, the natural assumption has been that he would speak there.

Political observers who have dug into the records of the past have found plenty of instances of a president actively participating in a campaign in which his own political fortunes were not at stake, but there are few of a chief executive directly urging the voters to support the presidential candidate of his party.

President Coolidge has clung scrupulously to the precedent in such matters and should he decide to make an address in or out of his home state he would be expected by those who profess to know him best to confine himself to a review of the party under past administrations and to an exposition of his own ideas of the benefits that might flow to the country by a continuation of Republican policies.

Hoover to Invade New England.

Hoover, himself, is to invade New England late in the campaign, just before he begins his driving finish of the presidential contest in his trip across the continent. Neither the time nor place of his address has been announced, but it has been the general understanding around his headquarters that he will speak to the Democratic stronghold of the state, Boston, between October 23 and 25.

Meantime, the Republican presidential candidate is giving special study to the situation there, as well as in other New England states which have become debatable territory, at least in the claims of the rival political managers. There are indications that the Republican drive in that section is to be increased in intensity even before the nominee makes his excursion into that territory.

Taking Personal Direction of Fights.

Hoover also is giving increased attention to the situation in the south as well as in other parts of the country, and more and more he is taking over personal direction of the fights, particularly in those states from which have come reports of agricultural unrest or apparent inroads by the Democrats. He is able to do this both by Long Distance telephone and also by direct contact with the leaders who constantly are calling at his headquarters to lay situations before him and receive instructions as how best to handle them.

Additional conferences of this nature had a place today on the nominee's program as well as his semi-weekly engagement to submit to questions of the newspaper correspondents. Between times he will subject to a second revision the proof of the address he is to deliver at Elizabethton, Tenn., October 6. He made the first revision yesterday and sent that proof back to the printer with a request for a new and corrected one.

Daylight Saving Ends on Sunday

Daylight saving time will officially cease for the year 1928 at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. At this hour or as near as convenient all clocks set ahead one hour on April 29 will be regulated to conform to sun or standard time.

Bear Cub First Passenger.

Montreal, Sept. 28 (AP).—A bear cub, a gift from Mayor Houd to Mayor James J. Walker of New York, will be the first passenger to use the international mail and express service to be inaugurated Monday between Montreal and New York.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP).—Following is the text of the address of Hon. Bertrand H. Snell, temporary chairman of the Republican State Convention, before the convention here today:

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Convention:

No man could look on this wonderful gathering without being proud of the Republican Party and its representatives in the Empire state. It is a signal honor to preside over a Republican State Convention, and I thank you for the courtesy you have extended me.

The time has passed when the average man and woman of the United States believes that a National Presidential Election does not concern him in his business or in his home life. Years ago citizens in the distant places, engaged in a moderate business and in comfortable circumstances, took little interest in a national campaign and did not see how the success of either party, or the enactment of any new legislation, could seriously affect them. But a new world with changed conditions and new problems has aroused a new interest among our people, and today they well know that there is no one thing that more vitally affects their every day life than the character and purpose of the government under which they live. And as this character and purpose of government is largely controlled by the political party in power in Washington, I want to speak briefly, plainly and honestly of the reasons shown us by history and experience why the Republican Party is best qualified to guide our destinies as a nation.

Campaign to Determine Future Policies.

This is more than a political campaign. This is a campaign to determine the future policies and standards of living in America and no one class of people is more directly interested or vitally affected by continued prosperity than the man and woman who has only the product of the labor of his or her own hands to sell.

Therefore the main question is, whether we want to return to the disastrous, financial and industrial conditions prevailing under Woodrow Wilson and Grover Cleveland, the only two Democratic Presidents since the Civil War, or whether we want to continue the universal happiness, contentment and prosperity that has prevailed under Republican administrations, and has been specially exemplified under Calvin Coolidge.

Campaign of Parties and Policies.

This is a campaign of parties and policies, and not a campaign of personalities and individuals. It is a question of whether the Republican administration of affairs in Washington has been so wise, constructive and progressive that it is entitled to a renewed vote of confidence, or whether the country wants to take a chance, try a doubtful experiment, and put a party in power with no definite constructive program, that is hopelessly divided and has always been a failure in managing the affairs of the nation.

It is also a question of not only continuing the Coolidge policies but of continuing in power in Washington the men who have helped to develop and carry out the policies that have given us the longest period of continuous prosperity the world has ever known.

Some of our Democratic friends have said this is a whispering campaign. As far as we are concerned there is nothing to whisper about. The Republican record is written in the busy hives of industry, it is written by the whirling spindles, it is written in the flaming furnaces, it is written in the heavens by the smoke belching from a million chimneys. Yes, it is written in the smiling faces of 120 million happy, contented and prosperous people.

Must Judge Future by Past.

The only way I know how to judge the future is by the past. Therefore, let us calmly and honestly examine the record of the two great political parties for the last half century and see which one has consistently stood for the principles and policies that have developed America and made her what she is today.

The nations of the world look with universal envy and amazement at our superior economic position. Every one of them concedes that our wealth, our standards of living, home welfare and educational institutions, our productive capacity and home markets exceed those of any country in the world. Yet they try to explain away that advantage by declaring it is due to our wonderful resources. The resources of America are no more today than they were when Columbus discovered them in the hands of the savage Indians. Their book value then was zero, and their gigantic and almost fabulous value of today has been entirely due to development and not to existence. While that development has been partly due to the intelligent and

RAILROAD SALE ENDS A ROMANCE

History of Wild Financing Recalled by Purchase of the Orient.

Kansas City, Mo.—Purchase of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway ends a chapter of railroad history romantic and tragic.

First visioned thirty-five years ago in a dream by Arthur E. Stilwell, a young Kansas salesman who had come here from the East, its construction began a few years later, financed by small-fry investors living far from Wall street, where such projects usually are capitalized.

In the period of construction Stilwell was confronted by many financial obstacles. But financing was his forte. Reluctant purses yawned at his magic voice. When he was faced by any problem he went into what he described as a trance and always came out prepared with ideas.

In addition to organizing the railroad company, he established numerous subsidiaries, such as construction companies and others. The construction company would build the line, taking in pay stock and bonds of the road.

Build Extensive Terminal.

Instead of a continuous line, the road was built in short stretches. It never got farther east than Wichita, Kas., although it carried Kansas City in its name and built an expensive terminal here. The purchase by the Santa Fe gives it the first Kansas City connection.

Eventually a line that stretched 737 miles from Wichita to Alpine, Texas, was completed and three widely separated stretches including one at Topolobampo, western terminal on the gulf of Lower California, were built, 250 miles on that side of the border.

Stilwell interested English financiers who invested heavily in the road. At about the same time, when aid in the amount of $2,655,000 was forthcoming from President Diaz of Mexico, the revolution of 1910 halted the payments after Stilwell had received about half the amount.

Even with all the financial aid Stilwell mustered, the road never was adequately equipped and as late as 1924 paid $400,000 for rental of box cars and $250,000 freight on coal hauled for its engines.

Kept Going by U. S. Loans.

The fact that the line was the only railroad serving more than a hundred communities in western Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, caused the government to keep it going with loans.

In 1912 it was thrown into receivership and in the reorganization that followed Stilwell was left out entirely. The original stock was thrown in the waste basket when $6,000,000 in gold notes secured by the Orient's properties were issued. Former investors took some of the notes and new investors, including Henry Ford and Senator Couzens of Michigan became interested. All went well until the road defaulted interest payments and its construction companies went into bankruptcy.

The road was refinanced in 1916 by a noteholders' deposit committee. English noteholders also formed a committee, but the two never worked in harmony.

Difficulties continued in 1917 and then William T. Kemper was named receiver and authorized to issue $2,500,000 in receivers' certificates to rehabilitate the line.

The Kemper receivership was a stormy period, including the years of government operations. On two occasions the road was on the point of being sold for junk. But Kemper and a few others put their own money into the line, obtained government loans and effected economies that made continued operation possible.

Dollar Watch Given Scientific Dignity

Washington.—The "dollar watch" has been elevated to the dignity of recognition within the branch of the human sciences which may be described as contemporary archeology.

The division of mineral and mechanical technology of the Smithsonian institution has assembled a series of watches, arranged to show how American inventors made it possible for the poor as well as the rich to own timepieces.

The collection includes the invention of Jason R. Hopkins of Washington, who in 1875 devised a timepiece intended to sell for 50 cents. His project failed, but a few years later patents obtained by D. A. A. Buck made possible profitable construction of a cheap watch.

For Aged Writers

Sceaux, France.—The historic castle of Sceaux is to be transformed into a home for aged authors and men of letters, if the plans of the municipal council of Sceaux are successful. The idea is backed by such men as Marcel Prevost of the French academy and Roland Dorgeles, one of the most popular young novelists in France.

Well-to-Do "Bum"

New York.—Arrested for soliciting alms, Daniel Sugrue, sixty-five years old, showed his resentment to being called a "bum" by boasting in court that he had $20,000 in the bank. He was sentenced to the workhouse for six months.

Still Seeking Vitamins

Vitamine is a term proposed by C. Funk to include the peculiar health-giving and disease-preventing element in the rice grain. It is probable that other vitamins will be discovered by future investigations.

On February 14, 1778, the sloop-of-war Ranger, commanded by John Paul Jones and flying the American flag, sailed into the bay of Biscay, near Quiberon, France, and was greeted by a salute from the guns of a nearby ship. This was the first time in history that the Stars and Stripes had ever been seen and saluted in foreign waters.

RELIGION AND LITERATURE

The inevitability of human progress is now an article of almost universal faith, and certainly our progress in the accumulation of knowledge and in perfecting amazing inventions has been such as to confirm that faith. But what of our progress in the arts? According to Robert Lynd, who writes on "Why Literature Declines" in the September Atlantic Monthly, "not even the professional optimist can see traces of any law of progress at work" in the arts. No real rival of Homer in epic poetry has appeared in 3,000 years. No tragic dramatist fit to be named with the great three in ancient Athens appeared until Shakespeare began to write 2,000 years later. Phidias of old Athens is still the greatest sculptor, Plutarch the greatest biographer, Bach, Mozart and Beethoven the greatest composers of music. There are now no Raphaels and Michaelangelos—and so on. Why is this? Says Mr. Lynd:

My own belief is that literature begins to go to the dogs as soon as Earth declares its independence of Heaven. In the great ages of literature Earth was, if not a suburb of Heaven, a subject kingdom. Heaven and Earth were places on the same cosmic map. The life of the mortals was lit up for them by the presence (or belief in) the immortals. Poets not only accepted the heavenly background but wove it into the theme of their narratives. The mortal characters seem to borrow a radiance from the gods. Take the gods out of the Iliad and you diminish the heroes, the battlefield (becoming) as petty as a lamp-lit town over which hung no firmament of stars. * * * Shakespeare's plays could never have been written except out of an imagination steeped in Christian conceptions, just as Oedipus Rex could never have been written except out of an imagination steeped in Greek religious conceptions.

Robert Lynd's idea is that literature depends for its highest inspiration on "a world larger than a world inhabitated by none than mortal men," that without this inspiration "men lose the high gift of song," that acceptance of a larger world than the one we touch with our hands is "one of the chief tributaries that feed the river of great literature," that the literary imagination "is akin to the religious imagination," and that "literature which has its roots in earth flourishes in its greatest splendor when its branches are stirred by some air from Heaven." This highly interesting view will be combatted, perhaps even scoffed at by the younger novelists of our time who draw their inspiration chiefly from such sources as the carnal Freud, but it cannot be denied that life which includes another world and eternity provides an infinitely larger and grander picture than a conception of life confined to purely material or earthly things and restricted to the brief span of three score years and ten.

CANNED DRAMA

We have long had the "silent drama" as a rival of the speaking stage and, owing to its relative cheapness, a deadly rival outside of the large cities. And now, with the invention of "talking movies," we are to have the "canned drama" complete. The first thought following the announcement is that the old-line actors of the speaking stage, who suffered so greatly from the vogue of film pantomime, will now be in demand for the "talking movies" and prosperity will come their way again, even if they fail to get the satisfaction from acting before a complicated machine that is theirs in acting before a visible, applauding audience. Nevertheless the assured assertion is made that, on the contrary, they are now to face an intensified competition.

Why this is expected to be the case is not made clear. One would naturally suppose that it is the present movie stars and actors who are threatened with loss, perhaps even of their jobs—if the talking movies should largely supersede the silent drama. For the average movie actor has been training only in pantomime, having no need of training in proper accentuation, elocution and expression of emotion through the spoken word. Until they acquire these requisites—and many may fail to do so—one would suppose that trained actors from the speaking stage would have to be called on to meet the need and that, tempted by high salaries, they would consent to do so. The assertion that representatives of the speaking stage are now worse off than ever, in a material sense, does not carry conviction.

Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, wants to change the dates of the big political conventions, holding them in September. Then, he says, it would be possible for the candidates to make a quick campaign, laying their views before the voters "in a businesslike manner," and getting the whole thing over with promptly. Yes, that might be done. But American politics being what it is, the change isn't likely. And don't blame the politicians altogether. The game simply isn't played in a businesslike way, and Americans, players and voters alike, apparently don't want it played that way. The national campaign is the country's biggest show. The public as well as the active participants insists on taking several months for it, and enjoying it with all the trimmings.

Notwithstanding all the fine stories related to them about the success and happy results of prohibition in the United States, the Australians of New South Wales, in a wet-and-dry referendum voted 818,312 wet to 329,941 dry. The Federal district of Canberra also went overwhelmingly wet. The Australians still want to be "shown".

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY

James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

YOUR FAMILY DOCTOR.

Everybody is interested in an experiment and when that experiment concerns that body of yours, you are doubly interested.

Because, as stated previously, all you get out of life, all you give to life, is by way of your body, whether it is the product of your brain or your brawn.

The New York Academy of Medicine decided to give a complete physical examination to about one thousand persons of various races, both sexes, all ages, and chiefly from wage earners' families and others of limited means.

None of those examined considered themselves sick, nor were they taking any treatment for any condition.

What was the result?

"Less than 3 per cent were found to be in good health; 72 per cent needed definite medical treatment, and twenty four per cent needed only hygienic advice to correct or arrest some slight defects."

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company published the results of the six years experience with the first 6,000 of its policyholders who were being examined each year.

It was found that a total of 217 of these originally examined persons had died. This was only 72 per cent of the expected. There was therefore a saving of 28 per cent.

The company tested this result out in comparison with the experience with their whole body of ordinary policyholders who had been insured prior to 1915, and found that the difference in the number of deaths between these examined people and the latter, was 24 per cent in favor of the examined.

In the light of these figures it is certainly worth your while to have your family doctor spend an hour overhauling you from head to foot, because your life, to yourself, family, and the community, is worth it.

Further, when you stop to think of what the examination may save you in the avoidance of pain and illness, it is certainly worth the investment of time and money.

And finally, your ability to work, your ability to play, to give and take enjoyment out of life, depends, as mentioned above, on how your eyes, nose, throat, heart, lungs, kidneys, skin, blood, and so forth, are doing their work.

So make an appointment with your family doctor and follow his advice.

The Albany Lutheran Conference convened in Spring Street German Lutheran Church.

Sept. 28, 1918.—The Dairymen's League at meeting at Court House advanced wholesale price of milk from 7 cents a quart to 8½ cents a quart for October.

Loren, who had been visiting his grandparents for the summer, got a present of a puppy as a playmate. He could not help but write his mother about it but still wished to surprise her when he got home so he wrote: "I have a surprise for you when I get home, but I won't tell you what it is, until I ge home. But I am going to tell you just one little thing about it, it barked all last night and kept us awake."

HOW

EXPERIMENT WILL PROVE NATURE OF QUICKSAND—Quicksand is the name given to sand which is incapable of holding up material. Though it is bottomless, when once it gains a grip on man or beast its suction power is terrible. To understand what quicksand is like, fill a sealer with dry sand. It takes a good deal of force to push an unsharpened pencil to the bottom of the sealer. Dampen the sand and it is still difficult to penetrate, but soak it—mix it with a quantity of water, and keep the mixture stirred—and the pencil pierces to the bottom with ease. This shows the secret of quicksand. If the grains are separated by water which is constantly coming in from below, the sand is "quick." But the separating agent need not be water; it may be gas. Small patches of quicksand found upon a beach are often the result of decaying matter, such as dead shellfish, buried beneath the surface and giving off gas. Quicksand found inland, in river beds or on moorlands, are usually caused by underground springs. But quicksand is not a special sort of sand. Any fine-grained sand becomes quick in the circumstances described.

How Heat of the Sun Reaches Mother Earth

The Smithsonian Institution says that the earth does derive its heat largely from the sun directly. On a clear day at sea level, with the sun in the zenith, about 75 per cent of the solar rays are transmitted directly to the earth through the atmosphere. Of the remainder part is scattered and reaches the earth in the form of sky light, part selectively absorbed, in the main by water vapor, and part reflected back to space. Four constituents of the atmosphere, comprising less than 3 per cent of the total weight of the atmosphere, are very largely responsible for the losses which the sun's rays suffer in reaching the earth. These constituents are water (both as water vapor in the form of clouds), dust, ozone and carbon dioxide. If the amount of these four constituents remains unchanged, the density of the atmosphere may vary through a wide range without appreciable effect on terrestrial climate.

How Ship Is "Arrested"

According to maritime law, ships, like men, can be arrested for failure of the owners to pay just claims against them, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Some large ports have a special dock which is used as a sort of maride lockup. In case of an arrest, a sheriff's officer usually comes aboard, shows a warrant of arrest to the captain and nails the document to the mast. The ship is then legally a prisoner. According to British maritime law, anyone who has done any service for the ship, such as towing, repairing, lending money or even laboring as a seaman, can demand payment from the owners and, if this is not forthcoming, arrest proceedings are authorized.

Mexican Law Rigid

It is unwise and expensive to flout the metric system in Mexico. A Tampico merchant was fined 200 pesos ($100) for advertising his wares in terms of pounds instead of kilos. The metric system is supposed to prevail all over Mexico. In the country the Indians often have vague measurements of their own, and in the cities Americans and British sometimes lapse into pounds and miles and quarts. Such lapses in advertising in Tampico will be followed by fines, the department of weights and measures has announced.

How Magnets Are Made

There are two general methods for making artificial magnets. One is to take a bar or a needle of a magnetic substance—that is, iron or steel—wrap an insulated wire around it and place a strong electric current through the wire. The other is to take, as before, a bar or needle of a magnetic substance and place it near a magnet. The intensity of the magnetization is increased in both cases by hammering the bar while the magnetizing action is going on.

How to Keep Evergreens

Evergreens require unusual care in transplanting. When placed in pots, urns or window boxes they seldom live beyond the first year. In growing evergreens they must receive plenty of water, sufficient cultivation, and the proper amount of fertilizer. There is little excuse for these trees drying up after planting. By giving them careful attention they can be grown with success.

Bait Landed "Fish"

There was a suitcase lying beside the road. Four Kansas women in a motor car stopped to pick it up. As they did so a lone highwayman appeared, took $2,500 worth of diamond rings from the women and then vanished. The suitcase was just a bait.

How Lightning Acts

There is a widely held error that a lightning conductor attracts lightning. All it does is to conduct the electric fluid to earth when lightning strikes a building.

Ants in Surgery

At one time the ant was used by surgeons to bind the edges of a wound. When placed in contact with the wound the ant closed its jaws, biting through the skin and joining the two edges.

NOVELTIES FOR THE HOME . . . By John Caesar!

Catching a Bird

Little Margaret was found playing in the back yard with her grandmother's best salt shaker. Margaret's mother asked what she was doing.

"I'm going to catch a bird," she replied.

"Surely you don't think you can sprinkle salt on a bird's tail and catch it?" the mother said.

"But Mr. B— told us kids that we could sprinkle salt on a bird's tail and catch it and he wouldn't tell a lie for no bird," Margaret insisted.

"Why, Margaret, that's impossible."

"Well, hasn't Aunt Carolyn a bird in a cage, and how did she get it?"

Noisy

One day a woman who owns a small restaurant served dinner to a man and his wife. The man was deaf. In the midst of the meal, the owner of the restaurant noticed that the woman wrote a message on the order pad and passed it over to her husband. She felt that some comment had been made on the food which had been served.

After the guests had left, she read the slip of paper that had been left behind and found this: "Don't stir your ice tea so hard. It sounds as if you were beating a cake."

Short Memory

A well-known man spent an hour in conference with an oil magnate. His secretary finally came in to remind him that a number of visitors had been waiting a long time. The financier decided to go out and apologize for delaying them.

He was followed to the outer room by the man with whom he had been in conference, and in making the rounds came to him, shook his hand said he was sorry he kept him waiting, and that he was very happy to see him.

Due to their ungodly shape, the objection to the man going around half naked like the women is amply justified.

She was only a fireman's daughter, but she sure filled out her hose.

We simply must tell another Scotch story. It seems that there was a Scotchman walking down Fair street the other day looking for a cheap post office.

Statistics would probably show that loaned books make the fewest comebacks.

One thing hard for the farmer boy to understand is why he should have to plow the corn when the fishing is good.

He's so lazy, child, that he even eats loaf sugar.

"Well, what do you think of him?" asked one.

"Very remarkable," replied the other thoughtfully, "I've heard soup gargled and syphoned, but, upon my soul, that's the first time I've ever known it yodeled."

We think some one should try and patent a water-proof wrist watch for those who dip their toast into their coffee.

A man can usually find a dozen reasons satisfactory to himself for doing or refraining from a particular action.

When a woman is selecting peaches she doesn't want clings. But with a man it is different.

First Student (in restaurant): Why are you swiping those spoons?
Second Student: The doc told me to take two teaspoons after each meal.

Amen.

Lord, suffer me to catch a fish
So large that even I,
In talking of it afterwards,
Shall have no need to lie.

The most remarkable change brought about by bobbed hair is the character of the stories told in the barber shop.

The man who renders the best service to those who deal with him builds his business on sound lines. And each of us, as a specialist, in a certain line, can help the other fellow.

A word to the wife is insufficient.

Rev. W. E. Frampton Highly Indorses The New Remedy--Nu-Erb

Expresses Gratitude to Nu-Erb Man Who Told Him About This Wonderful Medicine—Tells How It Helped Him!

Many prominent and highly respected citizens all over the country have given high testimony to the great powers of Dr. French's Nu-Erb in overcoming suffering, but the experience given here by Rev. W. E. Frampton, pastor of M. E. Church of Clark, Pa., is of particular interest.

"I can highly recommend Nu-Erb for I have used three bottles and have been greatly improved in health. Stomach and kidney troubles were at the bottom of it all and must have been the cause of rheumatism through my joints that was very painful and caused me great discomfort. My liver was sluggish, too, and my bowels were habitually constipated.

"For eight or nine years I had been this way and when I was telling the Nu-Erb man recently about these troubles of mine he advised me to give Nu-Erb a trial. This I decided to do and in a few short weeks it has helped me wonderfully. My stomach gives me practically no trouble now, kidneys have been strengthened. The rheumatism is practically all gone and my bowels are acting regularly. My general health, too, has improved and I am feeling better in every way. I am very glad to indorse such a medicine."

REV. W. E. FRAMPTON.

How Nu-Erb Acts

Many people do not stop to realize that a lot of outward symptoms are really caused by some deeper trouble and nine times out of ten it is either constipation, stomach troubles, weak kidneys or a sluggish liver at the bottom of it all. Take, for instance, foul breath, that tired drowsy, worn-out feeling, pains in the back, sore muscles, aching joints, nervousness and rheumatism. Get the vital organs working properly and these symptoms disappear.

After taking Nu-Erb a while you will notice the bowel action becomes easier and regular every day, gas ceases to form on the stomach, headaches pass off, the giddy feelings disappear, the kidneys are regulated so that backaches and painful muscles and joints are relieved. The nerves are soothed so that sleep becomes sound and restful.

At this season of the year, the entire system should be given a "house cleaning" and countless thousands who have learned its value in seasons past, will again turn to Dr. French's Nu-Erb as the ideal tonic and renovator.

Insist on getting the genuine Dr. French's Nu-Erb, which is sold in Kingston only at McBride's Drug Store, 312 Wall street. The Nu-Erb man now located there will gladly tell you more fully about this remarkable medicine.

Whether you install the RUUD AUTO-HOT in your basement or in your kitchen---in any case you will enjoy the unfailing hot water service that this appliance affords.

Keep your present 30 gallon galvanized iron tank. The water in it will be warmed to some extent by being stored in the heat of a kitchen or basement. And as this tempered water is further heated in your RUUD AUTO-HOT a distinct saving in gas will result.

You can also use your RUUD AUTO-HOT in connection with your furnace coil. This is not recommended, however. Furnace coils do "lime up" because of the high heat they are exposed to. This, of course, reduces the flow of hot water and makes an adequate supply questionable.

The hot water from the furnace coil is also apt to be rusty. This condition is particularly undesirable when washing clothes, as the rust particles produce stains which are almost impossible to remove.

$5.00 will be allowed for your old furnace coil if applied to the purchase price of a RUUD AUTO-HOT storage water heater.

We are certain that with a RUUD AUTO-HOT in your home you will increasingly appreciate the value of an adequate, economical and dependable supply of hot water for all purposes.

P.S. Dont forget that for users of automatic storage water heaters there is a Special low charge of 95 cents per thousand cubic feet for all gas used in excess of 3200 cubic feet per month.

HERBERT HOOVER

A Reminiscent Biography By WILL IRWIN

(Extract from the book published by The Century Co.

IV. His First Office Seeks Hoover.

The second great move in Herbert Hoover's life came in June, 1891, when he went from Salem to Palo Alto to enter Leland Stanford University. For six years he had lived in Oregon with his uncle, John Minthorn, whom he had joined soon after the death of his mother in Iowa.

He found the university in the last of its birth-pains. The campus was still "torn up" and resonant with sawing and hammering. He entered conditioned in English composition—it was not until just before his graduation that the condition was made up.

Here Hoover knew first the joy of the intellect, here he felt the initial stirring of his higher powers, here he found his wife. Within fifteen years his interests and wanderings were to embrace the globe, but those golden hills above Palo Alto were always the pole to his compass.

He was pressed by financial need. The registrar needed a temporary clerk. Hoover got the job. Later he obtained and operated a laundry agency.

In the meantime a minor disappointment. Professor Branner did not arrive to open his engineering department until the beginning of the second semester. Hoover then registered in geology. He fell under the direction of a great natural teacher, one of the greatest I have ever known, a scholar to the marrow of his bones. Branner's code nevertheless envisaged the application of scholarship to practical purposes. Association with Branner was in itself a higher education.

Circumstances threw Hoover and Branner into close personal relations. The new professor needed a part-time secretary; by virtue of his experience as an office boy Hoover got the job. Before long Branner perceived the qualities of character and mind hidden beneath the placid surface of this gangling boy.

Branner was preparing a survey and a topographical map of Arkansas. Needing assistance, he put a proposition to his office boy. So in the summer between freshman and sophomore years Hoover tramped the Ozarks with surveying instruments on his shoulder.

In his sophomore year, under tutelage of his friend Sam Collins, Hoover first became interested in university politics. The students were entering a turbulent era. In the first semester enterprising seniors had formed "the student body" to take control of collegiate activities. Greek letter fraternities had combined at the birth of the university to control its politics. They had no organized opposition.

In Hoover's second year there arose a prophet of the non-fraternity men whose name was Zion. He set himself squarely against the fraternity element, announced his candidacy for president of the student body. Collins swung in behind him, and Hoover followed. Partly through their efforts Zion won.

In the summer of 1892—between his sophomore and junior years—Hoover thought not only on his summer job, but on the problem of the Stanford student body. He returned in September with a mature plan in his mind—his first creation in organization. All student activities should lie under control of the student body, and the active manager should be a bonded and double-audited student body treasurer. The common treasury should collect all gate receipts from contests and shows and should pay all expenses. That was the essence of a constitution which, with minor modifications, still governs student activities at Stanford.

Collins, Kimball, Zion, Wilbur, Herbert Hicks and Lester Hinsdale, leaders in student life, saw that the man for treasurer—the most important job—was Hoover. His abilities had dawned upon them, not burst. However, they found that Hoover needed persuading. He believed that the treasurer should draw a modest salary, but this he refused to take.

"No, sir," said Hoover emphatically. "If I except this nomination and get elected I take no salary. Otherwise they'll say I'm backing the new constitution just to get a paid job." On these terms he was finally persuaded. So they nominated for student body president Lester Hinsdale, for football manager Herbert Hicks and for treasurer Hoover. Presently fences and pavements blossomed with the legend in colored chalks, "Vote for the 3-H ticket," and Stanford was in the midst of a campaign without precedent for heat and intensity.

The Three-H's won and presided at a loud rally of triumph and broke Stanford precedent by opening cigars for the crowd. At once they set out to fulfill their pledge concerning the new constitution.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

"AS IS"

A YOUNG man was complaining to me the other day about pests.

He says that, having arrived at the age of twenty-four, he is becoming increasingly tired of tiresome persons.

Some of them counsel him to be cheerful all the time—"to keep smiling."

Some of them tell him he must work twice as hard as he does if he hopes to succeed.

Still others advise him to reform his careless style of clothing himself and to put forth more effort than he usually does to impress people.

I will admit that pests are nuisances, but so are extremes of temperature, and flies, not to mention quite a number of things mentioned by Mr. Hamlet in his well known soliloquy.

But there is no need of getting into a temper about these things.

Railing at them will not abate them.

As long as life lasts there will be people who will insist on minding people's business, and remolding their friends nearer to their heart's desire.

There will always be people who want to meddle with your affairs, and, although they know nothing about them, try to attend to them better than you can.

• • •

Don't pay any attention to them.

You must accept this life "as is" to quote an expression which I do not like, but which nevertheless renders my meaning better than anything else I can think of.

It is a life full of sorrow and injustice, and blighted ambition, and needless cruelty.

It will be gradually made better, as it has been made better through all the time that history records.

But only in a few cases has flaming anger prevailed against organized wickedness.

• • •

It is usually the slow, more or less good natured determination on the part of intelligent and thinking people to abate evils that has done the trick.

The young person who is always in a temper, always fussing about this or that injustice, always intolerant of people who are different from himself is going to have a rough time in the world.

For he will be very heavily outnumbered, and it is not pleasant to be in a hopeless minority.

There is no reason to give up the hope of improving conditions, and there is no need of applauding your enemies, but you at least do not need to be picking on them all the time simply because they happen to be picking on you.

Take the word "as is," and do your little best to improve it here and there, gently, and do so as not to arouse animosity.

But remember that the pests must exist, and that sometimes by their pestiferousness they accomplish real good.

Consecration of New Hymnals

On Sunday morning the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will consecrate new hymnals, known as the Common Service Book, the official service book and hymnal of the United Lutheran Church. The consecration service will take place immediately following the processional hymn so that the new hymnal may be used for the entire service. Everyone attending the service will hold a hymnal during the consecration.

Because of the expense involved the matter of securing new hymnals had been deferred for several years until this summer when the pastor asked the congregation to offer single copies as memorials for their departed loved ones. Only 250 copies were desired as a start but in a very short time 300 were donated. The names of the donors and those remembered will be placed on an inside book label which will also give the order of service.

The new hymnal was issued during the quadricentennial year of the Reformation, 1917. It contains the standard revised text of the Common Service of 1888, newly edited Orders for Occasional Services and other features of a liturgical nature. The committee that compiled it says that it sought to include the largest possible number of classical hymns of the church of all lands and times, particularly those which were produced in the age and by the spirit of the Protestant Reformation. It has applied the standards of literary merit and extent of usage to all hymns, but the final test has been that of agreement with the faith and spirit of the Lutheran Church. They include the choral melodies originated with the Reformation. Dr. Peter C. Luskin, dean of the School of Music, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., says: "The Lutheran choral tunes with their massive breadth and dignity remain to this day the finest type of congregational hymn tune, and it is encouraging to note their increasing insertion in the newer and better hymn books."

A question box service will be held Sunday evening.

Snell Praises Republican Party

honest toil of our people, yet the real development and wealth of our country has come as the result of wise national legislation during the last sixty years, and during that time no material advancement or development has taken place except under Republican administration and Republican measures.

Democrats Follow Strange Gods.

You find by studying the history of the Democratic Party that they have followed every strange God that has appeared on the political horizon. After the Civil War they adopted greenbackism and opposed specie payment of our war debts. For 12 years they consistently stood for payment of the Civil War debts with depreciated paper money, just as Germany and Russia did after the World War, while the Republican Party steadfastly stood for sound money and the payment of all debts in coin worth 100 cents on a dollar as the only means of restoring public credit and private confidence.

In '96 the Democratic Party adopted another financial heresy—the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. Again the Republican Party came to the rescue and the sound money policy was vindicated at the polls.

Next came the issue of imperialism, which our Democratic friends defined as our lack of interest in the independence of the brown and black men of the orient, while they still deny the full rights of citizenship to every colored voter in solid Democratic territory. Then came revision of the Underwood tariff. After this the paramount issue was government ownership and this collapsed as did all their previous issues.

Won on False Slogan.

The Democratic Party won an election on the false slogan "He kept us out of war" and with the further promise that, if elected, he would keep us out of war. Every Democrat high in the government at Washington well knew when they were spreading that false propaganda among the American people that this very President himself was bending every effort, and mobilizing every resource to enter war, and he did declare war within 30 days after his inauguration. In 1920 they worshipped at the shrine of the League of Nations, but when this was snowed under by an avalanche of 7,000,000 votes they again turned to the setting sun which always sheds enough light to guide a fickle, frantic, faltering Democracy.

In this campaign they are trying to stem the tide of our national prosperity on a tariff plank borrowed from the Republican Party and by appealing to both sides on the prohibition and immigration issues.

For 68 years the Democratic party has adopted every political nostrum, appealed to every discontent, and even then has only four times succeeded in fooling the people. On the other hand the Republican party by following a consistent, constructive policy, relying on its record of achievement, has been in control of the government 52 of the last 68 years. And when you write the history of this country during the period of the greatest development and prosperity the world has ever known, you have written the history of the Republican party.

Panic Under Democrats.

On the other hand, every time we have had a Democratic administration, we have had an industrial and financial panic, excepting the first Cleveland administration, and the only reason we did not have one then was because a Republican Congress refused to pass the free trade tariff bill promised by the Democratic party, and President Cleveland was unable to destroy Republican protection. But during his second administration he had a Democratic Congress and he succeeded in passing a low tariff act, which was followed by the most disastrous panic this country has ever suffered, excepting the one following the Civil War.

This country again tried Democracy and a free trade tariff under President Wilson. Every person here recalls that the usual Democratic panic and depression had arrived and nothing kept this country from going through the same distressing conditions as those experienced in the previous Democratic periods except the outbreak of the great European war, which fortunately for our people removed European competition and flooded this country with enormous market demands. But what happened the day the war ended and once more we had European competition? We were still under the Underwood tariff and foreign goods of every nature flooded our markets. The mill, factory, furnaces closed and agriculture was absolutely prostrated. Five million honest American laborers were looking in vain for a job; government bonds sold for 84 cents on a dollar; government expenses were mountain high; taxation the highest ever known; the appaling effect of Democratic misrule and free trade covered the whole country like a black shroud. That is the legacy Woodrow Wilson left the American people. Then the people rose in their wrath and demanded the Republican party and a protective tariff.

Gigantic Task Confronted Harding

The most gigantic task of reorganization and reconstruction that ever confronted any political party confronted the Harding administration in 1921, and on our record of accomplishment for the last seven years we are willing to submit our cause to the American people.

In seven years we have reduced our national debt 7 billion dollars. We have reduced the annual cost of government nearly two billions, and decreased the direct taxes of the American people over one and one-half billions annually, and removed the names of three million people of small incomes from the federal tax rolls. Eleven billions of foreign loans have been refunded. Claims growing out of return of property of aliens have been adjusted. We are spending over 700 millions annually in care and compensation of soldiers and their families. We are appropriating more money for good roads, public buildings, inland waterways development, flood control, and for the advancement and development of agriculture than in any period of our national history. And mind you, my friends, every dollar of these extraordinary expenses has been paid out of the current revenues of the government. The economy and efficiency at Washington that has made this possible has been largely due to the sane, capable, fearless leadership of Calvin Coolidge.

Emergency Tariff Act Passed

Within 90 days after the Republicans came into power in 1921, we passed the emergency tariff and the restricted immigration bills. The effect was magic. The emergency tariff saved the home market for the American farmer, and the limited immigration saved the home jobs for American workmen. The Republican immigration bill of '21 was the most potent piece of legislation directly favoring American labor that has been passed in recent years. It protected equally the newcomer and the native born. As a result of the war there were millions of Europeans desiring to escape the burdens, suffering and starvation of their own countries and they were coming here as fast as steamers could carry them. When they arrived here they were taking the jobs from our laborers, for they would work cheaper, and the only possible way of protecting our laborers was to pass a restricted immigration bill. This was promptly done by a Republican Congress and signed by a Republican President.

During the next session of Congress we will repeal the national origin sections and liberalize the provisions pertaining to separated families. The Republican policy is a humane one, and the limitations are solely and directly for the purpose of creating and protecting American jobs for American workers. Restricted immigration does for labor what protection does for the producer. The one protects the job, and the other protects the product of the job. Both are absolutely necessary to perpetuate the prosperity and happiness of the highest paid and most intelligent labor in the world.

Quotes Hoover on Wages.

Right here I want to give what was so clearly stated by our candidate a few days ago:

"When I speak of wages I refer both to those who work at the bench and those who work at the desk. Nor is this addressed to men alone. More than ten million women march to work every morning side by side with the men. Steadily the importance of women is gaining not only in the routine tasks of industry but in executive responsibility. To protect labor, to maintain its prosperity, to abolish poverty, we must so organize our economic system as to provide a job for all who have the will to work. Full employment depends not only upon a strong and progressive economic system but upon the sound policies of and the vigorous cooperation by the government to promte economic welfare."

That is exactly what the Republican party always has done and intends to do in the future. We promise to protect and promote the economic welfare of the country so as to give an opportunity for work to every person desiring to do so. To create an opportunity in the supreme service any government can do for its people.

The most troublesome question before the organized societies of the world today, is to do away with poverty and to give the man who works with his hands a larger share in the blessings of prosperity. America has gone farther toward solving the problem of extreme poverty than any other nation in the world. And it has done this through wise, progressive and humane labor legislation that has been fostered and fathered by the Republican party.

Tariff and Agriculture.

Just a word about the emergency tariff to show you how friendly the Democratic Party is to protective principles. Every man and woman here knows the disastrous situation confronting agriculture immediately following the war and after the radical deflation of values in farm products and farm lands, engineered by a Democratic Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Houston, and a Democratic Federal Reserve Board headed by Mr. Harding. There were more agricultural imports of all kinds than at any previous period. The major part of them coming in free under the provisions of the Underwood tariff. The Republicans eager to remedy the situation introduced and passed the farmers emergency tariff bill. This bill provided substantial protection to agricultural products. This measure was opposed by the Democratic leaders and practically all Democrats in the House, and met the same Democratic opposition in the Senate. And when it finally passed by Republican votes it suffered the fate of all protective tariff measures in the hands of a Democratic president. President Wilson promptly vetoed it. But with a Republican Congress in extra session and a Republican president in the White House, the farmer did receive the protection to which he was so justly entitled. That is how the Democratic party protected agriculture then. The same leaders are there today and with this record before us they are asking the American farmer to trust his future to a newborn Democracy. Will he do it? No—never.

The Republican party was called into existence to save the nation, and from the very first it has been the party of national vision, national policies and the unqualified champion of equal rights and privileges to all men. We bar no man from our council tables on account of race, color or religion. The only qualification is that he be an honest American citizen and support the constitution of the greatest and most generous republic in the world.

Parties Antagonistic on Tariff.

The fundamental difference between the Republican and Democratic parties for all time has been their antagonistic positions on the tariff. The Republican party always has, now does and, I predict, always will stand for a protective tariff. The Democratic party for all time has violently opposed a protective tariff and stood for tariff for revenue only until one morning last June they awoke and thought they were, perhaps, for a protective tariff. Talk about a leopard changing its spots, talk about a camel going through a needle's eye, these are every day occurrences compared with the national Democracy declaring for a protective tariff. Why, I know the legislative leaders of the Democratic party, and I know how they shed crocodile tears every time any one suggests the word "protection". Their valiant warriors stand ready with a thousand poisoned arrows to keep any protectionist from entering the Democratic fold. God forbid that the protection of American industry and American agriculture should ever be left to the tender ministrations of the Democratic party.

In adopting a partially protective tariff plank, the Democratic party is confessing openly that it has either been absolutely wrong on this subject in every campaign since the party was formed, or else throughout its entire history it has been grossly stupid or willfully misleading the voters of the country. And with that kind of a record for over a hundred years our Democratic friends have the effrontery to ask the American people to believe that they would carry out a policy of protection in a more satisfactory manner than the party that discovered and developed the protective tariff principle.

The Fordney McCumber tariff bill passed by the Republicans in 1922 is the most satisfactory piece of tariff legislation ever put on the statute books of this or any other country. Well do I remember how bitterly the Democrats fought every provision of this bill; the dire calamities that they claimed would follow its passage. They maintained it would not produce revenue; it would kill our import and export trade; it would build a Chinese wall around America. My friends not a single one of their predictions has ever come true. It has produced revenues beyond the fondest hopes of its most ardent supporters, and since its passage we have enjoyed the greatest import and export trade during our history as a nation.

Protective Tariff Brings Good Times.

In actual percentages of both imports and exports we have outshipped all the free trade nations of the world. In fact there has never been a protective tariff measure that did not bring good times to industry and business in all sections of the United States, and to all classes of citizens. A protective tariff not only stimulates and stabilizes production, and thereby benefits the wage earner by giving steady and profitable employment, but it furnishes a purchasing power to buy the product of the farm that is not even approached by any other country. And as 92 per cent of the output of the American farmer is sold at home, and 40 cents of every wage earner's dollar goes for food products, therefore when you protect industry and labor you also protect the American farmer and create for his products the best market in the world.

The present Democratic candidate indicates that he favors the principles of the Underwood tariff. In his speech of acceptance I find the following:

"The Democratic Party does not and under my leadership will not advocate any sudden or drastic revolution in our economic system which would cause business upheaval and popular distress.

"This principle was recognized as far back as the passage of the Underwood tariff bill!"

Let me call the attention of the dairy farmer of New York to what this proposed Democratic tariff would do to him. It would reduce the tariff on butter coming from Denmark, Canada and Australia from 12c. per pound to 2½c. per pound. It would reduce cheese from 25 per cent advalorem, and not less than 5c. per pound, to 20 per cent advalorem. It would reduce frozen eggs from 6c. per pound to 2c. per pound. Dried eggs from 18c. per pound to 10c. per pound. Fresh eggs in shell now 8c. per dozen would go on the free list. Milk now 2½c. per gallon and cream 20c. per gallon would both go on the free list. The tariff on fruits and vegetables would be reduced proportionately. The dairy farmers of New York will give Democracy its answer to this reduction in November.

Attitude of Western Farmer

What about the western farmer and his attitude toward the favored Democratic Underwood tariff? Wheat which now receives a protection of 42c per bushel comes in free. Corn now 15c per bushel is also on the free list. Buckwheat now 10c on free list. Rye now 15c also on free list. Cattle, sheep, goats and hogs, together with all kinds of meats and meat products, excepting poultry, Mr. Underwood lets in free. What do you think the western farmer is going to say on Election Day to the pleasant sophistries handed out by Democratic politicians favoring a change from the Fordney to the Underwood tariff? There is no doubt but what the next Congress will revise our tariff laws and give added protection in spots where needed. The question for the American people to decide is whether they want this revision made by the friends or enemies of the protective tariff system.

I would just as soon expect a bootlegger on trial to insist on being tried before a jury of Methodist parsons as I would that the American farmer would chance his future prosperity on a tariff bill written by the Democratic party.

Friends, I want the man who has the temerity to tell the American people that our present prosperity is only a myth to answer the following facts:

For the last six years all industry has been unparalleled in the economic history of this country or any other country in the world. Aside from minor recessions such a high level of general prosperity has never been maintained for so long a period.

More and Better Homes

More and better homes have been built than during any similar period in our history. These homes contain more of the modern conveniences and luxuries, such as bathrooms, telephones, electric lights, radios, etc., than are in all the homes of the other nations of the world. Labor has been continuously employed at the highest wages ever known, thus furnishing a purchasing power for manufactured and agricultural products that is the wonder and amazement of all civilized nations. Good roads, filled with high and moderate priced automobiles, cover the land. More children are in our public schools, more young men and women are being educated in our colleges. Our cities, villages and country are filled with well fed, well dressed, happy and contented people.

The report of the Department of Commerce says of the first six months of the present year: "Manufacturing production has shown an increase over the previous high record of the first six months of 1927. Building industry has shown a greater activity than in any other six months' period in American history.

"The automobile industry, which reflects the buying power of the public, has had a larger output than at any time except the first half of '26.

"The retail order houses did the largest business on record. The general value of industrial and commercial transactions as reported by banks set a new record. There has been a constant increase in the use of electricity for domestic and industrial uses, showing a gain in domestic comfort and industrial efficiency. The production of steel ingots was greater than during any previous six months, not excepting the war period. Business failures showed smaller liabilities than during corresponding period in '27. Life insurance in the first half of '28 had the largest sales on record. Also the relative price of farm products showed an advance as compared with other products. And, above all, the true barometer of prosperity is the savings of our people, and the savings banks show unprecedented gains." That great American newspaper, the New York Times, on September 16th practically substantiated these facts.

Fail to Find Discontent.

In my judgment, with such a condition of affairs in the business world, any calamity howler trying to deny these facts will not find much discontent to which to appeal during the coming campaign.

Furthermore, for the first time in our history as a nation, has a candidate for high office made light of economy and efficiency in government business.

And try as he may to befog the public mind by distorting the record and criticising the Republican program of public economy, he will never be able to change the historical fact that the fiscal achievements of the past seven years of the present administration form the most brilliant chapter in national finance that has ever been written in the history of any nation in the world. The benefits of this program of business economy have accrued not only to the plain people, the business and commercial interests of this country, but they have also accrued indirectly to the whole world, because due to this Coolidge policy of economy and sound financing, this country has been placed on a permanent peace time basis and has, by reason of its financial strength and example, been able to stabilize conditions throughout the world. Let the Democratic candidate continue to make light of this record and the intelligent, thinking voter will give him the answer at the polls in November.

Federal and State Expenses.

At Washington we have decreased the running expenses of the government 36 per cent, while here in New York under Democratic executive they have increased 197 per cent.

We have decreased the national debt 27 per cent while during the same period New York's debt has increased 48 per cent. We have decreased federal taxation 31 per cent while taxation in New York state has increased 181 per cent.

We have continually reduced the cost of government at Washington, but a Democratic executive has so continually increased it in this state that the average man is not getting any tax relief and this has been the result, notwithstanding the fact that during Governor Smith's tenure of office the revenues of the state have increased from approximately 73 million to 206 million.

Washington has a pay-as-you-go policy, while New York has had a borrow-all-you-can policy, and pay it some time in the future if possible.

Adequate Army and Navy.

The Republican party stands, as it always has stood, for an adequate army and navy. We aim to maintain such a stable form of government as will insure peace, prosperity and contentment at home and at the same time furnish ample protection for our citizens in every land and clime.

We stand wholeheartedly for universal peace, but believe that can be best accomplished without any entangling foreign alliances, without any secret diplomacy, and with adequate national defense. We have never refused succor to any distressed nation, we have never refused aid to a struggling people trying to maintain a constitutional form of government, and in return we have never demanded or received a single dollar or a foot of foreign territory. We neither covet or desire foreign possessions and are striving to maintain such a straightforward, open, fair foreign policy as will command the respect and admiration of the nations of the world. The outstanding achievements of this Republican policy are the Naval Arms Conference in Washington, the Dawes Commission on Reparations, and the Kellogg Peace Conference for the purpose of outlawing war. I point to these three accomplishments as the most definite and positive steps for maintaining the peace of the world that have ever been undertaken by any one political party during any one period of our history as a nation.

And I further point with great pride to that most comprehensive statement on our foreign relations made last year in New York city by President Coolidge, and say, without fear of contradiction, that it was the most definite statement dealing with foreign affairs made by any executive in the last 50 years.

Federal Budget System

Another one of our outstanding accomplishments is the establishment of a federal budget system. The Democratic party had consistently opposed this from President Taft's time down through the Wilson administration. And it was not until the Republican Congress elected in 1918 came into power that a federal budget bill was passed, only to be promptly vetoed by a Democratic President, and of the total number of votes sustaining the veto all but three were Democrats. Practically every Democratic leader voted to sustain the President, or did not vote at all. But promptly on assuming control of the government in 1921 the Republican party reintroduced and passed the budget bill that was vetoed by a Democratic President. This federal budget act, more than any other one piece of legislation, has produced a sound and businesslike administration of our national finances. In the present campaign the Democratic candidate for vice-president, speaking in the south, is reported as claiming credit for the budget bill. The record of the Democratic party from 1912 to 1921 speaks for itself, and I commend it to his attention.

Political Juggling

But this is not the only idiosyncrasy of Democracy. Last campaign they nominated for President a representative of Wall Street and a western radical for Vice-President. One candidate they did not dare exhibit west of the Mississippi. The other they did not dare exhibit in the east. This year their nominee for President in the east is quibbling over the equalization fee and for the repeal of the 18th Amendment, while their Vice-Presidential candidate in the south and west is upholding the equalization fee, the 18th Amendment, and the laws enforcing the same. Another distinguished southern Democrat, while appealing for votes for their Presidential candidate, says in the same breath, "but be sure and elect Democratic members of the House and Senate, who truly represent Democratic principles, so our President, if elected, cannot put into effect the policies he advocates." If there was ever a perfect example of political juggling, a definite effort of working both sides of the same political street, you have it in the present Democratic campaign. "Consistency thou art a jewel," but you are not at home among Democrats.

Republicans Stand on Platform.

On the other hand, the Republican candidates stand squarely on the platform adopted by the chosen representatives of their party. They are both traveling in the same direction, stand for the same policies and principles, and have back of them not only a united party, but a party proud of its past and hopeful of the future.

Pictures Herbert Hoover.

The Republican party presents as its candidate for the high office of President, that great administrator of human welfare—Herbert Hoover; for vice president, that ideally typical American—Charles Curtis. No men have ever been nominated for these positions with such a thorough knowledge of federal affairs, such a wealth of experience, of more native ability or sterling character than Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis. One of the most brilliant tributes ever paid to Herbert Hoover was by the greatest Democratic newspaper in this country, the New York World, on January 21, 1920. And Herbert Hoover today is a greater man than he was then, for he has been seven years Secretary of Commerce, and in this position has gained additional knowledge and experience of affairs of government at home and abroad.

"In the judgment of the World, the best-equipped and best-qualified man to succeed Woodrow Wilson as president of the United States is Herbert Hoover.

"We should be glad to support Mr. Hoover as the Democratic candidate for President on a platform that represented the historical principles of the Democratic party. We should be glad to support him as an independent candidate on a platform of progressive liberalism. We should not hesitate to support him as the Republican candidate on a platform representing the kind of government which Mr. Hoover has exemplified in his public career.

"Although the two parties are destitute of principle, they still retain some of their former characteristics, and Mr. Hoover combines the best of these characteristics in both parties. Mr. Hoover has proved himself one of the greatest administrators of all time. His achievements are among the miracles of the war, and when Europe speaks of efficiency it no longer speaks of it in terms of Germany but in terms of Hoover.

"He has worked with his hands and he knows from personal experience the point of view of the man who works with his hands.

"He has been a director of labor in great enterprises and he knows from personal experience the responsibilities and difficulties of the director of labor. He knows the economic condition of the world better, perhaps, than any other American, and economic understanding is now a vital element in government. He knows the diplomacies and policies of Europe as few Americans have ever known them.

"Those Americans who want a business man for president can find him in Mr. Hoover, who has brilliantly managed one of the most successful business undertakings known to history. Those who want a Progressive in the White House will find him an instinctively democratic progressive. Those who want administrative ability will find in him administrative ability of the highest order which has proved itself on three continents.

"Those who want an unyielding champion of human rights and a responsible government under law will find in him a candidate about whom they need have no misgivings.

"In point of ability, in point of experience, in point of capacity to deal comprehensively with the new problems of reconstruction, Mr. Hoover towers above all the candidates who have been brought into the contest. There are no arguments against him except the arguments that are spawned out of the stagnant waters of professional politics.

"For itself the World does not care whether Mr. Hoover calls himself a Democrat or a Republican or a Progressive or an Independent. He is the kind of a man that ought to be president of the United States, and he is the man the World intends to support for president of the United States regardless of all the artificial barriers of a debased and discredited partisanship."

For once the New York World is in entire harmony with the hopes and aspirations of the Republican party in presenting its candidate for the high office of president.

Handling Foreign Relations.

The greatest individual problem confronting a President of the United States is the handling of our complicated foreign relations. Domestic problems can be threshed out on the floors of Congress and we are all more or less familiar with them, but foreign relations must necessarily be carried on through diplomatic channels. With the complicated conditions prevailing among the nations of the world, with the majority of them looking to us for leadership, it is absolutely essential to have a President of this nation a man who by ability, education and experience, is qualified to meet these demands. No man has ever been nominated for the high office of President who, from travel, business training and experience including service as Secretary of Commerce, knows so well our foreign relations, or the business relations and aspirations of the nations of the world as does Herbert Hoover. Such is our record. Such are our candidates.

On the one hand you have the Democratic party with inexperienced National leaders, a vacillating and indefinite financial history, no foreign policy, a doubtable tariff convert, and almost certain financial and industrial depression.

On the other hand you have the Republican party, with tried and experienced leaders, sound government finance, definite foreign policy, protective tariff and assured national prosperity.

Which will you choose?

What the Office Demands.

The great office of the President demands the highest quality of ability and character. It demands courage and national leadership. It demands accurate knowledge of conditions at home and abroad. It demands a constructive statesman, wise enough to form and guide our national policies. It demands the best there is in our national life, standards and purposes, for in the eyes of the outside world your President stands for America.

No man has ever retired from the position of President enjoying such universal confidence and admiration both at home and abroad as will Calvin Coolidge. Had he chosen to be our party's candidate he would have received overwhelming support from every part of the country, because the average man believes in his policies. The people believe in the kind and character of government he stands for. No one man has done more to help form those policies; no one man has done more to help execute those policies; no one man more ideally typifies the best there is in the Coolidge administration than does the present Republican candidate for President, Herbert Hoover.

Big Home for Small Bird

The tuck-in-blouse is under discussion. Paton being among those who are showing it this season.

Hand painted sweaters, in modernistic design are among the fall novelties.

Molyneux is having success with an envelope purse made of antelope, banded with contrasting color across the center, and fastened by a metal ball which fits into a metal disc hollowed out for this purpose.

Scarfs are more novel in shape. One is formed by so joining two squares that the narrow portion comes at the back of the neck, the ends being square.

Another scarf is a band of the border of a square, the point coming either at center of front or back, or being used, after the triangular manner on the shoulder.

Bottle green kid shoes, to match the costume of course, have made their appearance.

Chenille dotted fabrics have a tremendous standing.

The minaret silhouette is among the several being sponsored.

Complexion shades are the latest in gloves and of course should be consistent with the stockings, as well as the complexion.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Pretty Morning Frock

6251. This model will be pleasing in cool checked gingham or printed dimity, with facings of a plain color. It is also fine in linen, and serviceable in crepe or pongee. Circular yoke bands trim the round neck, and are lengthened on the front to form overlaps beneath which the closing is effected. Plaits at the side supply graceful fulness and ease in movement. Neat pockets on the front are useful and decorative.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Sizze 38 will require 3⅞ yards of 27 inch material together with ⅝ yard of contrasting material for facings on yoke, pockets and belt. The width of the dress at the lower edge with plaits extended is 1⅝ yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1928 Book of Fashions showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Three wampum belts hidden by Algonquin Indians more than 100 years ago were shown at Niagara Falls the other day for the first time. They had been secreted because the redmen feared the whites would steal them. The Indians certainly knew their Caucasians.

Like their Turkish sisters, women of Bosnia have abolished the veil and are demanding short skirts, bobbed hair and other characteristics of modern femininity. Soon all picturesque phases of dress in every foreign land will be abandoned for the standardized fashions of New York and Paris.

Eleanor Gunn Says

Avoidance of Extremes Cautioned If One Be Fashionable.

New York—The spotlight has been turned on extremes—such models as are radically different than those which have been the accepted fashion for summer. This follows the usual tradition, but does not necessarily mean that all models launched, and certainly not all accepted, will be ultra.

The princess line, the bustle and minaret silhouettes, and such things are not for general wear, charming though they unquestionably are in the proper environment. Modified fulness and relative simplicity make the wider appeal. An avoidance of extremes is cautioned and a curbing of enthusiasms for the more radical changes suggested. The fashion market is a bit chaotic, and unless one is rich enough to take one's losses, occasioned by too hasty judgment of what is a fad or a fashion, it is better to discount the more sensational of the season's offerings.

Picturesque evening clothes seem to be the only ones of interest at the moment, although the question of beads again has arisen. Beaded dresses may be said to be, if not actually with us, lurking around the corner. Lace, especially such as involve chenille add a new interest, and have prepared us for the announcement that one of the latest Paris revues is costumed and staged under the Spanish influence. Both in color and in the plentiful use of black, in silhouette, and in some details, such as lace, chenille dotted or otherwise, there is a strong Castilian flavor. It remains true, however, that no one period or clime dominates the mode.

Among the commanding items in accessories, may be cited the use of crepe de chine for footwear, and a revival of velvet for the same purpose, several of the new shoes are in modernistic Oxford effects and all of distinctly formal types as befit the fabric and the general trend of fashion.

Curiously enough velvet seems to be making less headway in millinery than for other purposes, the felt hat remaining a favorite. There are several novelty felts in the shops. Many hats make use of two fabrics, one of which may be velvet. Chenille is used for some of the cleverst hats, the majority of which frame the face and to have their origin in the peasant caps in which France abounds. One sees a reason for a revival of velvet hats in the ensemble which consists of a short fur jacket and velvet dress or skirt. It is the logical determination of such a theme. Turbans and berets are well liked, the off-the-face movement coming in for the lion share of publicity, largely because it is the new note.

The short fur jacket is bound to win the approval of the younger set but as a different fashion for any but the slender. There seems to be a leaning toward curly furs such as lamb, karacul and goat. Shaved furs also persist, and there are of course, the staple furs—mink for day and ermine for evening wearing must important. Whether one's preference runs to fox, badger, lynx or to the Cone furs seems immaterial, the manner in which they are applied rather more than the furs themselves being of greatest moment.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Two politicians seem alive to the importance of the golf vote. Bobby Jones declared for Smith the other day. And now the women's national committee for Hoover announces that Glenna Collett is for Hoover.

Worcester, Mass.—Albina Osipowich swam her way into a college education at the Olympic games. A citizens' committee has decided to raise $2,500 as a scholarship for her.

New York—Soon after an airplane arrives in California from New York Kathleen Norris will have first view of some prize-winning dahlias named for her. Awarded first prize at the show of the American Dahlia Society for the finest new variety they were shipped to the author.

White Plains, N. Y.—There's no legitimate value in these 325 cases of pre-war liquor, including Scotch, Bourbon, beer, imported claret, Absinthe, Benedictine and then some. They are part of the estate of Joseph A. Strasser and the state of New York is asking no inheritance tax on them because they cannot be sold legally. A son and daughter inherit the liquor, but cannot move it from the ancestral cellar.

Philadelphia—Ruth Duffin, 15, has returned to Altoona to be a good girl instead of a bad boy. She ran away dressed in her father's best suit. He brought along one of her dresses and they swapped.

New York—He'll probably have to describe the gloom in Mudville once more. De Wolf Hopper is to be given a dinner October 21 to mark his fiftieth year on the stage.

Wayne, N. J.—Francis A. Burdette, 63, totally blind for 15 years, has built himself an eight-room two-story-and-one-half house.

Oakland, Cal.—Local members of the W. C. T. U., are crushing cigarette butts with their heels. More than 2,000 have been stamped down in a few weeks. The reason, as given at a convention, is to keep children from smoking them.

New York—A survey has convinced Dr. Frank Aydelotte, president of Swarthmore College, that an Oxford education is an excellent preparation for success in the United States. Of 550 former Rhodes scholars in America, only 140 are more than 40 years old, yet 72 are listed in "Who's Who in America."

ROOSEVELT DEFENDS SMITH AT ATLANTA.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 28 (AP).—The man who placed the name of Governor Smith before the Democratic Convention at Houston in an address here Wednesday night said the Republicans were hiding "their rottenness under the cloak of a prohibition issue" and defended the nominee from what he called a campaign of "slander and scandal."

Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York came from his winter home at Warm Springs, Ga., to declare that prohibition was "not a noble experiment" but an ignominious failure" and charged that pamphlets had been sent out attacking the religion of the New York Governor.

"Republican leaders, while announcing they had nothing to do with this slander campaign," Roosevelt declared, "are glad it is coming on. And I am too. I wish I could put the slander and scandal sheet into every Protestant home in the country and thereby give Smith the nation's unanimous vote."

Roosevelt turned to avowed foes of the New York Governor, naming Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama; Former Congressman W. D. Upshaw, of Georgia; Dr. John Roach Straton of New York and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, of the Department of Justice.

"I pray," the speaker said, "that the Lord Almighty will spare Upshaw, Heflin and Straton until after election. They are doing more than anybody else to make sure the election of Governor Smith."

Starting off on a track not covered in his prepared address Roosevelt declared that the prohibition issue had been raised "as a coat of enamel to hide other sins and uncleanliness."

As for foreign policy, he said Smith would regain by fair dealing the friendship of foreign nations lost by Harding and Coolidge. The prosperity claims of the administration, Roosevelt classified as without foundation.

"They are not prosperous in New England," he asserted, "nor are they prosperous in Georgia."

Petrification Begun

Remains of an ancient California forest in the early stages of petrification were discovered by workmen excavating nearly sixty feet below the surface at Oakland, Calif. The wood was still soft enough to be crushed in the hand but was visibly in the process of becoming stone.

Cork Leg Saves Vet in Ocean Death Leap

Philadelphia.—How a cork leg kept Bruce McQuillen, forty-three, a World war veteran, afloat after an alleged suicide leap in midocean from the Cunard liner Samaria was learned by friends of McQuillen and his father, Dr. Daniel Neall McQuillen, Philadelphia dentist.

McQuillen, who was on his way to Europe with his father and some friends, was rescued when a boat was lowered from the liner. Later he slashed his wrists, and because of his condition the party abandoned the proposed European tour and remained aboard the Samaria for the return voyage.

According to Doctor McQuillen, his son has been despondent because of his wounds.

BOY GETS FIRST CHANCE TO PLAY

Taken From Father Who Kept Him Prisoner.

Memphis, Tenn.—Woodrow Wilson, eleven, experienced more thrills in one afternoon than most people do in a year.

For the first time in his life he went swimming, saw a circus, visited a park and the zoo, and saw his first snake, elephant, a deer, a bear and other animals. All in one glorious afternoon.

Woodrow is a healthy, robust youngster for his age, and has the mentality of the average boy of sixteen. He is normal in every way and always has been.

Yet since he was a baby he has watched other children play from the window of his home where he was held captive by his father, J. H. Wilson, seventy-four years old.

His mother died when he was a baby and his aged father had kept him closed up in their home, except for school hours, and he was escorted to and from school directly. He was never allowed to go out and play with other boys and girls.

Recently he broke a rule of his father's by going out into the yard to play. Neighbors complained to police that Wilson beat the child with his fists.

Woodrow was brought into Juvenile court and taken from the custody of his father. Now almost every civic organization in Memphis is vying for the opportunity to "show him the town."

Frogs Keep Starving Gold Searcher Alive

The Pas, Man.—After being lost for 48 days in the North country and living on frogs and dead fish, Andy Taylor, prospector, came back to civilization—in rags and so weak from starvation that he could hardly walk.

He came back in an airplane and with him his friend, Fred Coleman, Ontario prospector, who refused to believe he was dead, stayed on the ground and kept up the search long after everybody else had quit, and finally found him.

The plane was piloted by Captain Kenyon, Western Airways pilot, who flew to Burntwood to get them.

When Coleman found him, Taylor was at the point of giving up the fight. His shoes were worn out, and he had wrapped pieces of his tattered clothing about his bleeding feet. For days, he said, he had been able to walk only about 50 or 100 feet before falling down exhausted. A seven weeks' beard covered his pale, gaunt face.

He was tottering aimlessly along through the brush when Coleman, who had followed every clew and stuck to the trail, found him.

Taylor was too weak to talk much but—he could grin.

Fears New Gas Stove, Commits Suicide by It

New Orleans.—An obsessing fear that the jets of a new gas stove installed in his home would some day be left open and the family killed, drove Mike Stemp, fifty-six, to take his own life, by the very means he feared.

For two weeks the idea had haunted him, and he repeatedly warned his wife to take strict care to turn off the stove. He even had his bed removed to the farthest corner of the house to be away from it.

One night he awoke in a fright and declared the stove was leaking. The jets were found safely closed.

The next night his wife and two daughters, Florence, eleven, and Esther, fifteen, left him alone in the house. They returned to find him slumped over the open jets of the stove, dead, in the gas-filled house.

Lives Through Ordeal

Owosso, Mich.—Geo. Miller, eighty years old, inmate of the county farm is recovering from the effects of hanging head downward for 12 hours. His foot caught in a high wire fence while climbing over it and he was unable to release himself. He was in a semi-conscious condition when found by a farmer.

That the maps, plans and specifications for the construction and improvement of the "Kingston-High Falls County Highway No. 229, Ulster County" which is more particularly described in paragraph "Fifth" of this petition, require that the lands and premises mentioned and described in paragraph "Third" of this petition, be acquired for said improvement.

TENTH. That the Bureau of Highways of the Board of Public Works of the State of New York and the Commissioner of Highways of said Bureau has duly authorized and directed the Board of Supervisors of the County of Ulster, to acquire the lands described in paragraph "Third" of this petition for the improvement and construction of the "Kingston-High Falls County Highway No. 229, Ulster County" and that the acquisition of such lands is necessary in order that the said highway and said Bridge No. 3, may be repaired, reconstructed and improved and in order to make travel thereupon safe, and in order to effect a more perfect system of market roads and through routes within the County of Ulster and the State of New York.

ELEVENTH. That the public use for which the premises mentioned and described in paragraph "Third" of this petition is required is for the repair, reconstruction and improvement of the said "Kingston-High Falls County Highway No. 229, Ulster County" which said highway is more particularly described in paragraph "Fifth" of this petition, in accordance with Article 7 of the Highway Law as amended; and the facts which make necessary the acquisition of, improvement, reconstruction and repair of the said highway and bridge No. 3; the elimination of dangerous curves and turns therein and the widening of said highway at various places in order to accommodate persons and vehicles thereover and in order to facilitate travel thereupon and thereover and in order to insure the safety of the traveling public thereupon.

That the Board of Supervisors of the County of Ulster on or about the 9th day of January, 1928, duly adopted a resolution authorizing the appointment of a Committee to purchase lands necessary for highway purposes and for the improvement, reconstruction and repair of State and County Highways, and that thereafter pursuant to the provisions of said resolution, the Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Ulster appointed a Committee for such purpose, the names of the members of which Committee are mentioned and set forth in paragraph "Second" of this petition.

FOURTEENTH. That the said Committee so appointed as aforesaid, inspected the several parcels of land necessary to be acquired for the reconstruction, improvement and repair of the "Kingston-High Falls County Highway No. 229, Ulster County" which is described in paragraph "Fifth" of this petition, in accordance with the plans and specifications made and prepared therefor, including the parcels of land mentioned and described in paragraph "Third" of this petition, and the said Committee has been unable to agree with the owners of the property mentioned and described in paragraph "Third" of this petition, for the acquisition thereof, for the reason that in some cases no agreement could be reached between the said Committee and the owners of said parcels as to the value of the premises sought to be acquired and because of the facts that the owners thereof demand compensation therefor grossly in excess of the actual damages sustained by them by reason of the taking and acquisition thereof, and in other cases for the reason that the owners of said premises and the persons having liens thereupon or interests therein could not be located or interviewed by the said committee.

FIFTEENTH. That the name and place of residence of the owner of the property sought to be acquired herein and which is described in paragraph "Third" of this petition, is as follows:

Marvin Van Wagenen is, or claims to be the owner of the premises described as praecl No. 3, subject to the mortgage held by Otto Mollenhauer and Louise Mollenhauer.

SEVENTEENTH. That upon information and belief, none of the owners or parties interested in the lands described in this petition are infants or non-residents.

EIGHTEENTH. That it is the intention of the Bureau of Highways of the State Department of Public Works of the State of New York, in good faith to complete the work of improvement, repair and reconstruction of the "Kingston-High Falls Bridge No. 3, County Highway 229, Ulster County" for which the property described in paragraph "Third" herein is to be condemned.

NINETEENTH. That all of the preliminary steps required by law have been taken to entitle the Petitioner to institute this proceeding and that this proceeding is necessary because of the inability of the petitioner to agree with the owners of the parcels herein described and sought to be condemned pursuant to the demand of the Bureau of Highways of the Board of Public Works of the State of New York, to acquire said parcels.

TWENTIETH. That hereunto annexed and made a part of this petition are maps showing the several parcels of land to be acquired herein, which said maps are numbered 3.

WHEREFORE, your Petitioner prays that it may be adjudged that the public use requires the condemnation of the real property described in paragraph "Third" of this petition: that your Petitioner is entitled to take and hold such property for the public use as herein specified and that upon making compensation therefor, as provided by law, and that a Commission of Appraisal be appointed to ascertain the compensation to be made to the owners of the property sought to be condemned in this proceeding as provided by the Highway Law of the State of New York, and such other laws and statutes as are applicable thereto, including the Condemnation Law and that your petitioner have such other and further relief as may be just and proper.

Smith Assails Republicans

hope," he added amid applause that fairly rocked the auditorium.

Criticizes Small Appropriations

The governor said the flood control bill, while authorizing an appropriation of $325,000,000, appropriated only $15,000,000 and added:

"That, incidentally, is something which is a new practice which has grown up in Washington. It was invented in the interest of economy. Its undoubted purpose is to lead some people to think that they are going to get something."

Loud booing came from the galleries when Smith mentioned an article in the St. Paul Dispatch, a Republican paper, which advised him not to discuss inland waterway development here "for fear the matter of the St. Lawrence waterway might give him some embarrassment."

"Nothing embarrasses men," shouted the nominee to cheers, and then added:

"I do not see anything in the Republican platforms of 1924 or 1928 about the St. Lawrence waterway. I read very carefully Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance. He does not say anything about the St. Lawrence waterway. I am afraid that is where the embarrassment is."

Declaring that in spite of his statement in his acceptance speech that, while he had favored the all-American route from the lakes to the sea he would abide by Congress's decision in the matter after a re-study of the question, "whispering agents of the Republican national committee are around whispering in a person's ear, 'keep him off; he will be for the New York route.'"

Discovers Another Whisper.

"Incidentally, here is another whisper that I discovered," the nominee continued. "The whisperers are circulating the word around that Smith and the Democrats intend to take the embargo off of Argentine cattle, which are now kept out of the country because of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease."

"Did you ever hear anything more ridiculous than that?" he asked, continuing:

"There is another whispering campaign that is going on and it is prevalent in this section of the country. 'Be careful of Smith. He favors unrestricted immigration. He is going to open up the flood gates and let Europe pour all over this country.'"

This he termed "nonsense" when it is considered that both the Republican and Democratic platforms, in different language, "declare absolutely for the retention in full force and effect of the present restrictive measures in the immigration laws."

"I declared for it, so did the Republican presidential candidate," he said, "except that he said that the national origins law was not workable. And I agree with him on that. There is no issue between us."

Crowd Jams Hall.

The hall where Gov. Smith spoke was estimated by police to have held 13,000 persons. It was jammed to the doors twenty minutes after it was opened at 6 o'clock. This was three hours before Gov. Smith began his speech. Almost as many were said to have stood around the structure and in a park opposite it, while hundreds pounded away at a dozen or more entrances trying to gain admittance.

Newspapermen, many in Gov. Smith's personal party, were among the great number who literally had to be carried in by police, and at least a dozen Minnesota reporters could not get in at all. To add to the confusion outdoors someone discharged a foul odor bomb.

Inside the uproar was terrific and twice during the speech every light in the place went out. Gov. Smith calmly waited for them to go on again as whispers of alarm spread over the audience.

They were out only for a few seconds on each occasion, but there were reports, which could not be confirmed, that some one had tampered with the switches.

News From the World on Wheels

News of the conclusion of what was perhaps the most hazardous endurance test ever taken by an automobile—the famous Chevrolet trek up through the center of Africa from Cape Town to Cairo—has just reached the United States in the form of the following brief cable from General Motors, South African Ltd., "Chevrolet expedition reached Cairo August 6. All the way by road, no boats, no rail. Greatest achievement of its kind in automotive history. Sedan and truck in excellent mechanical condition."

Flashing its way up the steep and precipitous incline from the toll house to the summit of Mt. Washington, America's steepest accessible mountain, a Franklin Special, piloted by Cannon Ball Baker, Saturday broke all existing world records for the 8-mile course. The air-cooled Franklin swept over the route in 14 minutes, 49 3/5 seconds, clipping 2 minutes, 10 2/5 seconds off the former record, which up to today had withstood all attempts at lowering. This Franklin record was officially timed by four newspapermen from metropolitan centers of New England.

Third of the larger companies to manufacture a super tire, The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company announces the newest addition to its line in the Silvertown De Luxe Balloon tire. According to Goodrich officials, the new tire has been in process of manufacturing more than a year and Goodrich chemists and engineers, working with a free hand for a quality ideal, had not been content to go into production until they were satisfied that the new tire was the best they could build. the factor of time was secondary to the factor of quality, engineers and chemists claim.

Detailed accounts of a sensational victory scored late in August by a Hupmobile Century Six stock car in the five day International Alpine Test over the steepest grades of the Alps in Italy, Switzerland and Austria are contained in official advices and European newspapers just received by the Hupp Motor Car corporation at Detroit. The International Alpine Test is considered in Europe the most difficult automobile durability contest of the present day. It is a post-war revival of the old international Alpine drive started in 1898 as a bicycle and automobile race and for years, until interrupted by the World War, was the outstanding event of Southern Europe's motoring world. The course, from Milan, Italy, to Munich, Bavaria, is 1,180 miles and traverses the highest mountain tract in Europe. It crosses such famous passes as the Simplon, with an altitude of 6,560 feet, the Furka, 7,701 feet; the St. Gothard, 7,216 feet, and the Stilfser, 8,053 feet. Heinz Hinterleitner, who drove the winning Hupp, received the International Alpine Gold Cup as a trophy for his feat.

The largest driveaway of Durant cars this year was staged at the Durant plant at Elizabeth, N. J., on September 20. Over 150 cars were driven out on this one day by Durant dealers from New Jersey, New York and Connecticut after an enthusiastic dealer meeting at the plant, when new models of the Durant Four and Durant Six Series "69" were viewed by these dealers for the first time.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—Two politicians seem alive to the importance of the golf vote. Bobby Jones declared for Smith the other day. And now the women's national committee for Hoover announces that Glenna Collett is for Hoover.

Worcester, Mass.—Albina Osipowich swam her way into a college education at the Olympic games. A citizens' committee has decided to raise $2,500 as a scholarship for her.

New York—Soon after an airplane arrives in California from New York Kathleen Norris will have first view of some prize-winning dahlias named for her. Awarded first prize at the show of the American Dahlia Society for the finest new variety they were shipped to the author.

White Plains, N. Y.—There's no legitimate value in these 325 cases of pre-war liquor, including Scotch, Bourbon, beer, imported claret, Absinthe, Benedictine and then some. They are part of the estate of Joseph A. Strasser and the state of New York is asking no inheritance tax on them because they cannot be sold legally. A son and daughter inherit the liquor, but cannot move it from the ancestral cellar.

Philadelphia—Ruth Duffin, 15, has returned to Altoona to be a good girl instead of a bad boy. She ran away dressed in her father's best suit. He brought along one of her dresses and they swapped.

New York—He'll probably have to describe the gloom in Mudville once more. De Wolf Hopper is to be given a dinner October 21 to mark his fiftieth year on the stage.

Wayne, N. J.—Francis A. Burdette, 63, totally blind for 15 years, has built himself an eight-room two-story-and-one-half house.

Oakland, Cal.—Local members of the W. C. T. U., are crushing cigarette butts with their heels. More than 2,000 have been stamped down in a few weeks. The reason, as given at a convention, is to keep children from smoking them.

New York—A survey has convinced Dr. Frank Ayedelotte, president of Swarthmore College, that an Oxford education is an excellent preparation for success in the United States. Of 550 former Rhodes scholars in America, only 140 are more than 40 years old, yet 72 are listed in "Who's Who in America."

ROOSEVELT DEFENDS SMITH AT ATLANTA.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 28 (AP).—The man who placed the name of Governor Smith before the Democratic Convention at Houston in an address here Wednesday night said the Republicans were hiding "their rottenness under the cloak of a prohibition issue" and defended the nominee from what he called a campaign of "slander and scandal."

Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York came from his winter home at Warm Springs, Ga., to declare that prohibition was "not a noble experiment" but an ignominious failure" and charged that pamphlets had been sent out attacking the religion of the New York Governor.

"Republican leaders, while announcing they had nothing to do with this slander campaign," Roosevelt declared, "are glad it is coming on. And I am too. I wish I could put the slander and scandal sheet into every Protestant home in the country and thereby give Smith the nation's unanimous vote."

Roosevelt turned to avowed foes of the New York Governor, naming Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama; Former Congressman W. D. Upshaw, of Georgia; Dr. John Roach Straton of New York and Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, of the Department of Justice.

"I pray," the speaker said, "that the Lord Almighty will spare Upshaw, Heflin and Straton until after election. They are doing more than anybody else to make sure the election of Governor Smith."

Starting off on a track not covered in his prepared address Roosevelt declared that the prohibition issue had been raised "as a coat of enamel to hide other sins and uncleanliness."

As for foreign policy, he said Smith would regain by fair dealing the friendship of foreign nations lost by Harding and Coolidge. The prosperity claims of the administration, Roosevelt classified as without foundation.

"They are not prosperous in New England," he asserted, "nor are they prosperous in Georgia."

Petrification Begun

Remains of an ancient California forest in the early stages of petrification were discovered by workmen excavating nearly sixty feet below the surface at Oakland, Calif. The wood was still soft enough to be crushed in the hand but was visibly in the process of becoming stone.

Cork Leg Saves Vet in Ocean Death Leap

Philadelphia.—How a cork leg kept Bruce McQuillen, forty three, a World war veteran, afloat after an alleged suicide leap in midocean from the Cunard liner Samaria was learned by friends of McQuillen and his father, Dr. Daniel Neall McQuillen, Philadelphia dentist.

McQuillen, who was on his way to Europe with his father and some friends, was rescued when a boat was lowered from the liner. Later he slashed his wrists, and because of his condition the party abandoned the proposed European tour and remained aboard the Samaria for the return voyage.

According to Doctor McQuillen, his son has been despondent because of his wounds.

BOY GETS FIRST CHANCE TO PLAY

Taken From Father Who Kept Him Prisoner.

Memphis, Tenn.—Woodrow Wilson, eleven, experienced more thrills in one afternoon than most people do in a year.

For the first time in his life he went swimming, saw a circus, visited a park and the zoo, and saw his first snake, elephant, a deer, a bear and other animals. All in one glorious afternoon.

Woodrow is a healthy, robust youngster for his age, and has the mentality of the average boy of sixteen. He is normal in every way and always has been.

Yet since he was a baby he has watched other children play from the window of his home where he was held captive by his father, J. H. Wilson, seventy-four years old.

His mother died when he was a baby and his aged father had kept him closed up in their home, except for school hours, and he was escorted to and from school directly. He was never allowed to go out and play with other boys and girls.

Recently he broke a rule of his father's by going out into the yard to play. Neighbors complained to police that Wilson beat the child with his fists.

Woodrow was brought into Juvenile court and taken from the custody of his father. Now almost every civic organization in Memphis is vying for the opportunity to "show him the town."

Frogs Keep Starving Gold Searcher Alive

The Pas, Man.—After being lost for 48 days in the North country and living on frogs and dead fish, Andy Taylor, prospector, came back to civilization—in rags and so weak from starvation that he could hardly walk.

He came back in an airplane and with him his friend, Fred Coleman, Ontario prospector, who refused to believe he was dead, stayed on the ground and kept up the search long after everybody else had quit, and finally found him.

The plane was piloted by Captain Kenyon, Western Airways pilot, who flew to Burntwood to get them.

When Coleman found him, Taylor was at the point of giving up the fight. His shoes were worn out, and he had wrapped pieces of his tattered clothing about his bleeding feet. For days, he said, he had been able to walk only about 50 or 100 feet before falling down exhausted. A seven weeks' beard covered his pale, gaunt face.

He was tottering aimlessly along through the brush when Coleman, who had followed every clew and stuck to the trail, found him.

Taylor was too weak to talk much but—he could grin.

Fears New Gas Stove, Commits Suicide by It

New Orleans.—An obsessing fear that the jets of a new gas stove installed in his home would some day be left open and the family killed, drove Mike Stemp, fifty-six, to take his own life, by the very means he feared.

For two weeks the idea had haunted him, and he repeatedly warned his wife to take strict care to turn off the stove. He even had his bed removed to the farthest corner of the house to be away from it.

One night he awoke in a fright and declared the stove was leaking. The jets were found safely closed.

The next night his wife and two daughters, Florence, eleven, and Esther, fifteen, left him alone in the house. They returned to find him slumped over the open jets of the stove, dead, in the gas-filled house.

Lives Through Ordeal

Owosso, Mich.—Geo. Miller, eighty years old, inmate of the county farm is recovering from the effects of hanging head downward for 12 hours. His foot caught in a high wire fence while climbing over it and he was unable to release himself. He was in a semi-conscious condition when found by a farmer.

hope." He added amid applause that fairly rocked the auditorium.

Criticizes Small Appropriations

The governor said the flood control bill, while authorizing an appropriation of $325,000,000, appropriated only $15,000,000 and added:

"That, incidently, is something which is a new practice which has grown up in Washington. It was invented in the interest of economy. Its undoubted purpose is to lead some people to think that they are going to get something."

Loud booing came from the galleries when Smith mentioned an article in the St. Paul Dispatch, a Republican paper, which advised him not to discuss inland waterway development here "for fear the matter of the St. Lawrence waterway might give him some embarrassment."

"Nothing embarrasses men," shouted the nominee to cheers, and then added:

"I do not see anything in the Republican platforms of 1924 or 1928 about the St. Lawrence waterway. I read very carefully Mr. Hoover's speech of acceptance. He does not say anything about the St. Lawrence waterway. I am afraid that is where the embarrassment is."

Declaring that in spite of his statement in his acceptance speech that, while he had favored the all-American route from the lakes to the sea he would abide by Congress's decision in the matter after a re-study of the question, "whispering agents of the Republican national committee are around whispering in a person's ear, 'keep him off; he will be for the New York route.'"

Discovers Another Whisper.

"Incidentally, here is another whisper that I discovered," the nominee continued. "The whisperers are circulating the word around that Smith and the Democrats intend to take the embargo off of Argentine cattle, which are now kept out of the country because of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease."

"Did you ever hear anything more ridiculous than that?" he asked, continuing:

"There is another whispering campaign that is going on and it is prevalent in this section of the country. Be careful of Smith. He favors unrestricted immigration. He is going to open up the flood gates and let Europe pour all over this country."

This he termed "nonsense" when it is considered that both the Republican and Democratic platforms, in different language, "declare absolutely for the retention in full force and effect of the present restrictive measures in the immigration laws."

"I declared for it, so did the Republican presidential candidate," he said, "except that he said that the national origins law was not workable. And I agree with him on that. There is no issue between us."

Crowd Jams Hall.

The hall where Gov. Smith spoke was estimated by police to have held 13,000 persons. It was jammed to the doors twenty minutes after it was opened at 6 o'clock. This was three hours before Gov. Smith began his speech. Almost as many were said to have stood around the structure and in a park opposite it, while hundreds pounded away at a dozen or more entrances trying to gain admittance.

Newspapermen, many in Gov. Smith's personal party, were among the great number who literally had to be carried in by police, and at least a dozen Minnesota reporters could not get in at all. To add to the confusion outdoors someone discharged a foul odor bomb.

Inside the uproar was terrific and twice during the speech every light in the place went out. Gov. Smith calmly waited for them to go on again as whispers of alarm spread over the audience.

They were out only for a few seconds on each occasion, but there were reports, which could not be confirmed, that some one had tampered with the switches.

News From the World on Wheels

News of the conclusion of what was perhaps the most hazardous endurance test ever taken by an automobile—the famous Chevrolet trek up through the center of Africa from Cape Town to Cairo—has just reached the United States in the form of the following brief cable from General Motors, South African Ltd., "Chevrolet expedition reached Cairo August 6. All the way by road, no boats, no rail. Greatest achievement of its kind in automotive history. Sedan and truck in excellent mechanical condition."

Flashing its way up the steep and precipitous incline from the toll house to the summit of Mt. Washington, America's steepest accessible mountain, a Franklin Special, piloted by Cannon Ball Baker, Saturday broke all existing world records for the 8-mile course. The air-cooled Franklin swept over the route in 14 minutes, 49 3/5 seconds, clipping 2 minutes, 10 2/5 seconds off the former record, which up to today had withstood all attempts at lowering. This Franklin record was officially timed by four newspapermen from metropolitan centers of New England.

Third of the larger companies to manufacture a super tire, The B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company announces the newest addition to its line in the Silvertown De Luxe Balloon tire. According to Goodrich officials, the new tire has been in process of manufacturing more than a year and Goodrich chemists and engineers, working with a free hand for a quality ideal, had not been content to go into production until they were satisfied that the new tire was the best they could build, the factor of time was secondary to the factor of quality, engineers and chemists claim.

Detailed accounts of a sensational victory scored late in August by a Hupmobile Century Six stock car in the five day International Alpine Test over the steepest grades of the Alps in Italy, Switzerland and Austria are contained in official advices and European newspapers just received by the Hupp Motor Car corporation at Detroit. The International Alpine Test is considered in Europe the most difficult automobile durability contest of the present day. It is a post-war revival of the old international Alpine drive started in 1898 as a bicycle and automobile race and for years, until interrupted by the World War, was the outstanding event of Southern Europe's motoring world. The course, from Milan, Italy, to Munich, Bavaria, is 1,180 miles and traverses the highest mountain tract in Europe. It crosses such famous passes as the Simplon, with an altitude of 6,560 feet, the Furka, 7,701 feet; the St. Gothard, 7,216 feet, and the Stilfser, 8,053 feet. Heinz Hinterleitner, who drove the winning Hupp, received the International Alpine Gold Cup as a trophy for his feat.

High Reverence Given India's Holy Milkman

A certain tribe of southern India, the Todas, regard their purveyors of milk as holy men. The office of these is the Holy Milkman, who runs an official residence, the dairy. Dairy which he is not allowed to leave after his term of office. The Holy Milkman, moreover, is usually a bachelor, if he married before being appointed to his high office, he must leave his wife and devote himself entirely to observing the stringent rites of the Sacred Dairy.

No ordinary person may touch him for to do so would defile his sacred office and he would be compelled to resign. Another restriction is that Holy Milkman must not be spoken to except on Mondays and Thursdays. On other days, any message must be shouted from a considerable distance.

The dairy temples are usually built in conical form, and the milkman priest must always sleep in the cow house, a draughty structure with a small fireplace. There is no door to the dairy, and a Holy Milkman is allowed to wear only one coarse robe. When he is eating, his hand must not touch his lips, and to prevent this the milkman throws his food into his mouth. When drinking, he must hold the vessel aloft and pour the liquid down his throat as from a tap.

What Marjory Brought Home

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(Copyright.)

THERE was always mental bracing on the part of Marjory's parents preparatory to her return from college. They never knew just what surprise she would have in store for them.

Last Easter vacation it had been three Japanese students discovered at the last moment to be spending the recess at the university. A year ago it had been measles. And at Christmas time a boyish bob.

"So sorry not to be here when my girl comes," said Father Stewart, called away on business, as he kissed his wife good-by. "And when I get home, break it to me gently."

Mother Stewart was sitting on the porch when the station flivver rattled up and she could see that Marjory wasn't Jake's only passenger. Beside her sat a slender young man who followed Marjory out of the car and up the walk.

As she stood up with open arms for her daughter, she heard that young person say, "Mother, this is a fraternity brother of mine who is going to put up at the Green Parrot for a few weeks. He writes the most up-to-date verse there is!"

Even as she gave him a cordial greeting, a silly rhyme rang in Mrs. Stewart's head. "I've brought you home a husband, both gallant and gay!" Silly, because he did not impress her as being either gallant or gay, and a girl who had turned down Bob Kendall would hardly fall for this young man.

Mrs. Stewart, who was the essence of hospitality, trembled on the verge of asking him to send for his baggage and make his stay with them, but something checked her words.

She met her husband that night at the garage door. "What is it this time?" he asked at once.

His wife gave him a queer look. "A poet," she said.

Later, after Father Stewart had met him, they took council together. "I think," he said thoughtfully, "it's his poetry rather than his personality which is making a hit with our girl. And until she gets fed up, I suppose we have got to have the fellow around under foot. A pleasant outlook, Bess!"

His suppositions proved correct.

Three weeks passed and still Percy lingered. Marjory's father who had found his daughter a total loss as far as he was concerned looked desperately around for an escape. Besides, the neighbors were beginning to talk. It wasn't reasonable to expect that anyone less than a fiance would have the run of the place.

Then arrived the Kendalls next door, a month earlier than usual. For years they had made of the old home a place to return summers and Bob and Marjory had filled the days with tennis and golf and general merrymaking. Something had happened at the close of the previous season to make it doubtful just what their relations this year would be. Bob had asked Marjory to marry him and Marjory had coolly said she wanted to see more of other men before tying her life up with one.

But the Kendalls were old, old friends, of the Stewarts and it was to Bob one night that Marjory's father spilled over his annoyance about Percy.

From that moment Bob took up his residence on the Stewarts' front porch with an impish delight that utterly ignored Percy's irritation at the intrusion. It is a funny thing how the same poem, read to a pretty girl, can lose its savor when a third person is present. Let the intruder be a young man with a sense of misplaced humor and you have the setting for serious drama.

August had come, however, before Bob had an opportunity to talk with Marjory in anything resembling the old-time fashion.

"You're forever dated up with Percy the Poet," he complained, "that I never get a chance for thanking you for what you did last summer. Kept me from making a fool of myself before I saw a bit of other girls. You're a peach, my dear, but if I had married you and then found you demanded poetry of me, I could not have stood the gaff."

Marjory's brown eyes flashed. "You have no right to make fun of my guest!" she exclaimed. "At least, he would be more considerate of my feelings."

"Marjory—oh, Marjory! Telephone!"

Bob could not help but overhear the conversation that went on in the hall a few feet away. At least, he heard enough of one side to guess what the other must be.

"Yes—yes— Why, Percy! How wonderful! Of course—tonight? But there's a very early train in the morning. Why—well, good-by!"

A moment later she reappeared on the veranda. "Percy's publishers," she faltered, "wish to see him about some changes in his little book which is to come out this fall. He's going tonight." In spite of every effort, her lip trembled.

"Why, why, Marge—" said Bob tenderly. "I'm sorry if you really care, darling—"

Marjory swallowed. "I don't—really—" she said. "Only my pride is wounded that he didn't even come to say good-by!"

"I wish I need never say good-by!" murmured Bob to the moon.

"Please—please don't!" said Marjory and found herself in his arms.

1929 Auto License Plates Arrive Here

The first shipment of automobile license plates for 1929 arrived in town Thursday and was unloaded by the Van Etten & Hogan trucking firm and carted to the Ulster County Vehicle Bureau office at 237 Fair street. The shipment consists of 16,500 pleasure plates, 4,500 commercial plates, 225 motorcycle plates, 50 suburban plates and 75 trailer plates, making a total of 23,450 sets of plates for Ulster county.

Next year's plates are smaller than this season and the color combination has been reversed. The plates are yellow with black figures. This year's plates measured 16 inches long. The 1929 plates will be but 13½ inches and a quarter of an inch wider. The figures this year are of a different type and the arrangement is different than in past years. The letter "J", which has been assigned to Ulster county, is smaller and precedes the numbers. The figure which in the past has preceded the letter is also smaller and is underneath the letter. Ulster county has been assigned 1-J and 2-J numbers instead of the H. and X numbers which have been in effect for some time.

The shipment of plates, which came in a car load lot, weighed over 16¼ tons. The plates will not be distributed until in November.

Wilbur Minstrel At St. Mary's Hall

A minstrel show for the benefit of Holy Name Church, Wilbur, will be presented in St. Mary's School Hall, corner of Broadway and McEntee street, Wednesday evening, October 5. The same cast that presented two shows for the Wilbur church during the summer will stage the minstrel.

Several from St. Peter's and St. Mary's parishes are members of the cast and it is expected that many who have watched them perform in shows of the past will enjoy their offerings in the Wilbur minstrel. George Reis, Johnny Fisher, Frank Graney, Tommy Stenson, John Doolin and Joe Kelly are among those who will play with the parishioners of Holy Name Church in the show.

The minstrel, coached by Miss Adeline Walker, contains plenty of humor, song hits of the day and a number of novelty offerings, which are promised to please all. There will be dancing after the performance.

PALACE ORNAMENTS ARE U. S. PRODUCTS

Nepalese Fancy Scales and Cash Registers.

Washington.—American cash registers are ornaments in Nepal.

They glitter from pedestals under the white marble entrance to the palace of the prime minister according to an engineer recently returned from there.

Inside the purchased beauty of cash registers gleams the polished metal of American automatic scales, Mexican chewing gum vendors and slot machines. But they are never purchased. According to Nepalese ideas a display of American furniture is better than bronze statues for a mantelpiece.

"American products have a better chance of entering Nepal than Americans," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society, "because the isolated mountain kingdom does not welcome foreigners.

An Absolute Monarchy.

"Only a few Indian officials are permitted to come over the pass from India and they are not permitted to go far from the capital, Katmandu. The Country of Four Passes, the Nepalese call their land, which is indeed a walled valley with four hill gates. Their domain under the eves of the Himalayas measures 500 miles long and spreads 140 miles at its greatest width. Within it live 5,600,000 hill people governed by an absolute monarchy.

"The monarch's commands, however, are both made for him and enforced by the prime minister, who lives in the cash-register palace.

"Nepal is the stronghold of orthodox, unadulterated Hinduism. The local caste system has more rules than intercollegiate football. Thus among the high caste are:

1. Brahmans, who eat rice cooked only by members of their own caste. They drink water from the hands of members of castes Nos. 2 to 19.

2. Surungasi, who eat rice cooked by Brahmans, Thakuris, and Khas only. They drink water from the hands of all castes up to No. 19.

3. Thakuri, who eat rice cooked by Brahmans only. They drink water from hands of all members of all castes up to 19.

4. Khas or Chitsi, who eat rice cooked by Brahmans and Thakuris only and drink water from hands of all members of castes, Nos. 5 to 19.

"The intermediate castes run from 5 to 19, inclusive, and the lower castes from 20 to 24, inclusive.

"The five castes from 20 to 24 do not have Brahmans as priests. Their priests are members of their own castes. They have no dealings of any kind with castes 1 to 19. They must leave the road on the approach of a member of castes Nos. 1 to 19 and call out to give warning of their approach. They may not enter the courtyards of temples.

Army Life Lures Men.

"As among the Russian Cossacks, war is the chief business of the best people in Nepal. The army is the only profession open to a 'gentleman' and so the rare visitor sees troops everywhere.

"Splendid and colorful as are the reviews and state ceremonies with their elephants in gorgeous trappings and the officers in brilliant uniforms, the Nepal women outdo them. They believe in color and lots of it. They fold yards and yards of muslin, gathered at the waist, spreading at the feet, so that a Nepalese belle looks as if she were about to depart for a masquerade ball dressed like a fan held upside down. Above the skirt the Nepal lady wears a tight-fitting velvet jacket. Her hair she winds in a knot, fastened above her forehead with a gold plaque. A heavy gold necklace and bangles complete her attire but the final touch is the theatrical darkening of the eyelids by which she expresses amorous lure. Her female attendants, by way of contrast, wear oriental trousers.

"Nepal is probably the only country in the world reached by stairs. The person lucky enough to get a visitor's permit literally steps down into the valley, because the main road from India ceases to be a road when it gets to the highest passes and at the last gate in the hills, the Chandra Giri, the traveler descends 2,300 feet on stone steps; probably the world's longest stairway. At the bottom are good roads and motor cars to convey the visitor to the capital.

"The view of Nepal valley from the top of the last pass is unequaled, travelers declare. Opposite lie the highest mountains in the world, the Himalayas, always tented under a deep blanket of snow. And at their feet is the blue-veiled valley with its orange groves, yellow fields and red-roofed towns."

A meteorite which would have destroyed quite a large city if it had fallen on one has just been reported by a scientist in Siberia, which suggests that the time may come when a Mahhattan world will have to provide landing fields for aerolites.

Yale Freshman Falls to Death

New Haven, Sept. 28 (AP).—Edward Lee Randolph, a Yale freshman, hardly familiar with his dormitory room in Haughton Hall on the Berkeley Oval Campus, walked out of a window early this morning and was mortally hurt. Death came just after his admission to the hospital. Randolph's home was in Pleasantville, N. Y., and a brother, Robert, is a junior in Sheffield Scientific School.

There was no witness to Randolph's fall. Apparently he had been awakened by the striking of an alarm clock at six and had jumped out of bed and gone into the entry and, instead of turning to a lavatory, stepped out of the entry window. He was found at 6:10 and taken to the hospital. After death it was found that his skull had been broken.

Randolph's slippers were beside his bed, and the clothes were tossed over indicative of a hasty leaving the bed, confirming impression of the class officers and classmates that he was not fully awake when he rushed to the entry door. Randolph had gone out for freshman football practice.

Those who take no chances have to take what's left by those who do.

Smedley, Democratic leader in Queens, for the nomination as county sheriff.

Dr. Mathews was on the stand as a state witness telling of the association of the late John M. Phillips, so-called Sewer Pipe King, with Connolly, former borough president, and Seely, former sewer engineer.

ROBINSON CONTINUES TO DENOUNCE PREACHERS

Robinson Special Car en route to Kansas City, Sept. 28 (AP).—Embarking on one of the most extensive campaign tours ever undertaken by a vice presidential nominee, Senator Joe Robinson, in his first appeal to the west, hit home on the same issues that he dealt with time after time during his recent drive through southern states.

The senator moved on to Kansas City today for the second of three speeches in Missouri, after opening his program in the state at Springfield last night by taking repeated thrusts at the eight year old record of Republicanism in Washington and denouncing preachers who, he said, were trying to mingle politics with religion.

It was his opinion, he said, that a minister who injected politics into religion did himself and his church more harm than the candidate he sought to oppose, and then at the top of his voice shouted out:

"When he stops preaching Christ and Him crucified, and starts preaching Al Smith and Him crucified, I lose patience."

This brought cheers and applause from an audience which packed every niche and corner of the auditorium in the Shrine Mosque and overflowed into the street outside.

Mr. Robinson also hit upon the Republican farm record and declared all that the party sought was "another lease on power" and that all its standard bearer, Herbert Hoover, had promised was to call another conference.

"Why that's what presidents Harding and Coolidge did," he declared. "What we want is action and Al Smith has promised that."

Mr. Robinson stressed the record of Governor Smith on legislation affecting women and children and contended that the Democratic presidential nominee excelled "any other living statesman," in his efforts in their behalf.

LOSS OF LIFE HEAVY IN HANKOW FIRE

Hankow, China, Sept. 28 (AP).—The greater section of the densely populated Chinese quarter was in ruins today after a fire which started in a gambling den on Tuesday and claimed an uncounted number of lives.

Men, women and children perished when, panic stricken at their inability to escape from the flames, they plunged into the lakes. Others fought their way in desperation along alleyways choked with people until overcome by smoke. Many persons were completely cremated.

It was impossible to determine the extent of loss of life.

The city's fire fighters were helpless. The area was in darkness from the time the fire began, due to the collapse of steel poles carrying power lines.

Chinese troops were called out to prevent looting and maintain order. Fear crazed crowds, however, swept the troops aside and looters became active. Order was restored today and soldiers were patrolling the city.

The police, charity organizations and the Chamber of Commerce were attempting to succor 10,000 persons who were homeless. The fire did the heaviest damage in the central Chinese quarter. Because of the demoralization which resulted no estimate of the loss was available.

Three Cases in Court.

John R. Brownley, arrested on North Front street, and Thomas Murphy, arrested on John street Thursday evening, both on charges of public intoxication, were fined $5 each in police court today. Unable to pay their fines they were sentenced to five days each in jail. Delbert Griffin of 189 Tremper avenue, arrested for leaving his car standing within ten feet of a fire hydrant on Wall street, was given a suspended sentence.

Friendly Society Card Party.

There will be a card party in Holy Cross parish house October 10, at 8 o'clock, given by the Girls' Friendly Society, Mrs. E. Vredenburgh, chairman.

JACOB MERKLE AWARDED CORDTS HOSE CONTRACT.

Jacob Merkle, local painting contractor, has been awarded the contract to paint the interior of Cordts Hose Company engine house on Delaware avenue, by the board of fire commissioners. Mr. Merkle's bid of $175 was the lowest submitted by seven bidders.

Business Certificate Filed.

Marabell, 14 Schryver Court, Kingston, have certified, by filing three certificates with the Ulster county clerk under the assumed business law, that they are conducting at 279 Fair street, three separate businesses, they being The Opera Beauty Shop, The Opera Barber Shop, The Opera Beauty Culture School.

Tagging Major League Bases

By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

John McGraw's "chickens" have come home to roost with a vengeance this season. If McGraw eventually is nosed out of the 1928 National League pennant, and that seems likely, he can blame a good part of it on players who once wore New York Giant livery.

Art Nehf, once the left-handed pride of McGraw's heart, dealt his one-time boss a staggering blow yesterday when he twirled the Chicago Cubs to a 3 to 2 triumph over the Giants in the opening clash of a double header. The Giants, fighting desperately to keep in the running, came back with a 2 to 0 win in the night cap but lost ground in the pennant chase notwithstanding. An easy victory over the Boston Braves carried the St. Louis Cardinals to a full game lead over the Giants where a half game had been their advantage before. Only three games remain on the schedule and that one-game lead may well stand until the two contenders clash in their final battle of the year at the Polo Grounds on Sunday.

Nehf, like Burleigh Grimes of Pittsburgh, another Giant alumnus, delights in taming his former teammates and he did just that thing to perfection, holding them to six hits while the Cubs were touching Karl Hubbell for nine. Given a 3 to 2 lead as early as the fifth, Arthur saw to it that this margin sufficed. He just escaped disaster in the sixth when Andy Reese was trapped off third base and finally run down. The Giants vehemently claimed Gabby Harnett had been guilty of wilful interfering with the base runner and carried their protest to John Heydler for decision.

In the second game the Giants got only three hits off Charlie Root and Percy Jones but one of them was Frank Hogan's home run in the second and another was a single in the fourth by Lindstrom, who eventually scored on Hogan's sacrifice fly. Joe Genewich gave the Cubs only five hits and was never in danger.

Jess Haines pitched the Cards to an easy 8 to 3 triumph over the Braves. The game was decided in the first inning when the red birds assaulted Brandt and Cooney for six runs. It was Haines' twentieth victory of the season, the last nine coming in a row.

Wally Pipp hit two home runs as the Cincinnati Reds trounced the Phillies, 6 to 2, and Del Bissonette did the same thing as the Brooklyn Robins took the Pirates over the traces in two games, 7 to 6, in 10 innings, and 8 to 1.

The New York Yankees just about clinched their third successive American League pennant when they beat Detroit in both ends of a double-header, 4 to 3 and 8 to 5, darkness halting the second game at the end of the seventh inning. A lucky break for the Yanks for their pitchers were reeling and staggering. Waite Hoyt shaded Owen Carroll in the opener. Babe Ruth hit his fifty-first homer in the first inning of the first game and his fifty-second in the initial round of the nightcap. One more Yankee victory or another defeat for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics will clinch the pennant for Miller Huggins.

The A's retained their mathematical chances by turning back the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 3. Lefty Grove allowed six scattered hits, and fanned nine men, and miraculous to relate, hit a homer in the third inning. He fanned the side on nine pitched balls in the seventh. It was Grove's twenty-fourth victory of the year.

The Cleveland Indians overcame a seven run lead to beat the Boston Red Sox, 14 to 10, in the first game of a double header but dropped the second, 7 to 4, when big Ed Morris kept them in check.

The Washington Senators shaded the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 5, in the first game of the windup series at St. Louis. Heinie Manush hit a homer with two on in the ninth when St. Louis scored all its runs.

2 Successive Games For Yellow Jackets

The Yellow Jacket football team will be called upon to exert an unusual amount of energy next month when the eleven will play two successive games. October 13 the local representatives will meet stiff opposition at Pittsfield, Mass., and the following day, October 14, will take on the West Point Cavalry at the Fair Grounds here.

The locals will open their season Sunday, September 30, against the West Point Artillery, one of the teams that gave the Yellow Jackets considerable trouble in seasons past. The soldiers are alert, fast players, who always put up a good game. The Kingston team will hold its practice session tonight in preparation for the game.

Managers Brooks and Craft are working hard to have everything in midseason shape for the opening game. They have considered conditions at the Fair Grounds, and as both are sportsmen familiar with every angle of pleasing fans in a way advantageous to the players, the game is expected to be played without a hitch. The bleachers will be placed in a position on the field from where the spectators may view the tilt with ease. This feature will tend to keep the fans off the field upon which they sometimes swarm to the disadvantage of the players.

GRIFFITHS BEAT MIKE McTIGUE IN ONE ROUND

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP).—A rugged youth with a pile-driving punch, Jerry "Tuffy" Griffiths of Sioux City, Iowa, today stood forth as a threat to Tommy Loughran's light heavyweight crown.

With a slashing attack that couldn't be stopped, Griffiths stopped the crafty colt, Mike McTigue, in the first round of a 10 round match last night.

Going into the match with odds definitely against him, in spite of his sensational record since entering the light heavyweight ranks, Griffiths hammered McTigue, former holder of the title, to the floor with almost the first punch. So withering was his punishment, that after the first knockdown, referee Davey Miller stopped the fight to save the "Irish Iron Man," who never quits.

The fight lasted two minutes and 59 seconds.

HUGE CROWDS TO SEE IRISH PLAY

Notre Dame Expecteu to Play Before 350,000.

That Notre Dame's famous Fighting Irish football team will play before 350,000 people during the fall of 1928 is the theory of J. Arthur Haley, business manager of athletics at the university, following two weeks of intensive work acknowledging applications for tickets.

Haley and his staff of assistants began to receive applications for the 1928 tickets on August 1, and the indications are that every game in which the Irish appear will draw a capacity crowd. In addition to three home games, the Notre Dame squad will journey to enemy stadiums for six contests.

Special interest is being shown in the Navy game, which will be played at Soldier field, Chicago, on October 13. Last year Notre Dame played Southern California at Soldier field on the last Saturday in November and 117,000 people witnessed the game. Three thousand additional seats have been installed at the stadium and Haley says that 120,000 seats will be sold. The Notre Dame athletic office has been besieged with requests for tickets to this game, and it is likely that the Navy-Irish tilt will be the most colorful of the 1928 season.

Memories of the 1926 season, when Carnegie Tech unexpectedly defeated the Irish team, which was then headed for another national title, have served to step up the interest in the Scotch-Irish game, which will be played on Cartier field, November 17. It is the last home game of the season. Haley predicts that this game will be sold out before November 1.

Messages from Los Angeles state that the Southern California-Notre Dame game will be the biggest drawing card the Pacific coast has ever had. The Trojans and their retinue are still stinging under their 7-6 defeat of last fall and will pack the stadium to see the old rivals fight it out again.

Field Goal Seems to Be Passing on in Grid Game

That ancient institution of the gridiron, the field goal, seems to be passing on. Only on rare occasions has it been resorted to, this year, although it is one of the most dramatic, often thrilling plays of the college football repertoire.

Three circumstances have combined to nullify the field goal. The most important one and the most recent, is that example of rule-making wisdom which caused the goal bar to be set back ten yards behind the goal line. This compels the goal kicker to boot the ball ten yards further on each kick, than formerly.

Another reason is the fact that a field goal nets only half the score that a forward pass yields, when a touchdown is scored.

And the final argument is that the loss of the ball invariably follows the failure of a field goal, whereas a try for a scoring forward pass is usually penalized by the loss of one down, merely.

Only when a team's forward passing attack has been nullified by an opponent or when the point after a touch down is to be scored, do teams today fall back on the placement or the drop kick.

Patching Up The Army-Navy Rift

Considered Certain They Will Resume Football Relations in 1930 —Navy to Yield to Army's Stand.

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—The now historic Army-Navy break in athletic relations, it develops on the eve of their 1928 football season, is likely to be patched up much sooner than has generally been anticipated.

It is even possible, though not likely, that the two service schools will effect a reconciliation and get together on the gridiron this season, in spite of the fact that both have arranged rugged and independent schedules as a consequence of the rift that occurred last winter. If not, it is now considered certain that they will resume football relations in 1930.

The primary basis for this unexpected outlook for peace, it is understood, will be a complete reversal of the Navy's stand on the three-year varsity player principle—the rock on which the academies split. The paramount motive, however, will be to restore harmony and regain public confidence in the ability of the nation's foremost service institutions to get along together.

In other words, as the situation is outlined authoritatively to The Associated Press, Annapolis authorities, having failed to effect any compromise agreement on the issue of athletic eligibility requirements, will concede West Point's right to play its men, regardless of how much previous college experience they have had.

Just when these prospective developments may take definite form is speculative. Officially, neither academy has committed itself to a positive move toward peace. In fact, West Point, standing pat as it has from the start, has permitted the impression to go out that it sees no immediate hope of a renewal of relations with Annapolis.

This much, however, is certain: That an overwhelming sentiment exists at both academies, among officers as well as cadets and midshipmen, for a speedy peace and renewal of athletic relations in all branches of sport; that the new heads of the two institutions, Major General Smith and Rear Admiral Robison, both are sympathetic with this sentiment; and that both will seize the first appropriate chance to effect a reconciliation.

It is understood, in fact, that General Smith and Admiral Robison already have had some discussion of ways and means of bringing this reconciliation about.

The path for quicker action appears to have been cleared by the retirement of the two superintendents who figured in the break, Major General Winans at West Point and Rear Admiral Nulton of Annapolis. But consideration for the latter's policy may retard the prospect of an immediate move.

Since the outlook is for the Navy to take the initiative, yielding to the Army's stand, there is small doubt West Point would respond quickly to peace overtures on its own terms. The army has held all along that it was ready at any time to go through with the four-year football contract, under which last year's game was played, whenever the Navy withdrew its insistence on playing against men limited to three years of varsity football.

City Bowlers Elect Officers

The City Bowling League got under way for the season when a meeting was held at Immanuel Lutheran Church Hall, Thursday evening, and officers were elected. Peter Keresman was again chosen president; John Raible, vice-president; Walt Neuls, secretary; William Thiel, treasurer and Frank N. "Pop" Hinds, director.

A committee was appointed to draw up a schedule for the league which will start in the near future. Teams represented at the meeting were the Y. M. C. A., Immanuels, Colonials, St. Peter's, Livingstons and Lyceums.

In order to get in shape for the opening of the City League several practice games will be played. The Y. M. C. A. pinmen will bowl against the Immanuels on the latters' alleys tonight. The Livingstons will take on the Lyceum team at St. Peter's and Wednesday the Colonials will stack up against St. Peter's on the church team's alleys.

Local Men Seek Horseshoe Title

At Memorial Field, Poughkeepsie, Saturday, September 29, at 2 p. m., several of the best horseshoe pitchers from the Hudson valley will meet to decide the championship of the vicinity. The contest which is for the Hudson Valley horseshoe pitching championship will decide who will hold the championship cup for the year. At a drawing held September 21 the various players were matched gainst an opponent in the preliminary games. Frank DuFlon, local ace who two years ago made the pitchers in Florida look to their laurels, is matched with Tom Merryweather of Rhinebeck. "Ken" Williams another Kingstonian and championship contender was paired with Hunter of Marlborough, one of the members of the Ulster county championship team which won the Chamber of Commerce and Farm Bureau cup this year and thereby became permanent owner of the cup.

Those who will play in the preliminaries at Poughkeepsie Saturday are:

DuFlon and Merryweather. Hunter and Williams. Kronberg and Staples. Allerson and Ayers and Manro and W. H. Brown.

The winners in the preliminary matches will again be matched and cup will go to the winner in the finals who will claim the championship of the Hudson valley.

Worst Team, Says Cornell Coach

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 28 (AP).—Gloomy Gil Dobie outdoes himself this year. His 1928 Cornell football team, he says, is the worst he ever coached. Yet loyal supporters of Cornell may gain some slight ray of encouragement from the fact that in the same interview Dobie declared not even the big red machines of the undefeated years of 1921, 1922 and 1923 were what he calls good football teams.

When you think of Dobie you think of those teams in the heyday of George Pfann and Eddie Kaw, yet when asked what outfits were the best of his coaching experience the long lean veteran doesn't even mention them. He goes back to the days when he was getting his start at the University of Washington as a builder of football teams which never met defeat in the nine years he was there. Specifically he names [illegible]

Financial and Commercial

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—The stock market displayed another complete reversal of price movement today, rallying at the outset and then breaking sharply on a renewal of selling pressure against the popular industrials and specialties. Early gains of 1 to 5 points were largely wiped out and in many cases replaced by losses of 1 to 7 points.

The initial upswing was influenced by the unexpectedly small increase in brokers' loans, the sharp drop in federal reserve rediscounts and the fixing of the renewal rate on call money at 6 per cent, the lowest in a month. Subsequent calling of $30,000,000 in bank loans, presumably in preparation for heavy week-end and month-end requirements, sent call money to 6½ per cent and then to 7. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

Raising of the call money rate inspired a renewal of bear attacks which brought out heavy liquidation by frightened investors.

Wright Aero dropped from an early high of 168¼ to 156½, off 7 points net, and General Motors fell from an early high of 212 to 208, or more than 10 points below the year's high established a week ago.

Radio, Custiss, International Harvester, Union Carbide, Purity Baking and McCrory Stores B sold 2 to 4 points below yesterday's final quotations. Early raids in U. S. Steel common, American Can and many other popular industrials were converted into declines.

In the absence of any adverse developments, other than the stiffening in call money, which was generally expected in banking circles, the reaction was generally described as a normal correction of a top-heavy speculative position. For the past few days several of the largest commission houses have been advising profit-taking and extreme caution in the making of new commitments.

Unusually heavy quarterly disbursements next week are expected by bankers to place a temporary strain on the credit situation, with an 8 or 9 per cent call money rate again likely.

Hotaling—Krom.

Lewis Hotaling and Birdella M. Krom, both of Stone Ridge, were married September 5, by the Rev. H. W. Decker at Hurley.

A Birthday Dinner.

A birthday dinner was recently served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Perrine in honor of Mr. Perrine's birthday. The dining room was artistically decorated with beautiful cut flowers and autumn colors. A large birthday cake graced the center of the table and on it was a white sapphire ring presented to him by Mrs. Perrine. He received many useful gifts from those who helped to make his birthday a merry one. Radio selections were enjoyed by all until a late hour when the celebrators departed for home wishing Mr. Perrine many more happy birthdays.

Byrne—Russell.

St. Joseph's Church was the scene on Wednesday morning, September 26, of a pretty autumnal wedding when at 8 o'clock Miss Charlotte Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Russell of Woodstock, became the bride of James P. Byrne, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Byrne of Van Buren street. The nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Burke. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March, played by Mrs. William H. Rieser, and during the ceremony Miss Ruth Byrne, sister of the groom and pupil of Mrs. Rieser, sang very sweetly Gounod's Ave Maria and one other selection. The bride was lovely in a gown of white taffeta, wearing a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and swansonia. Her one attendant was Miss Margaret Richards, who as maid of honor wore green taffeta trimmed with peach colored chiffon and carried tea roses. The best man was Joseph E. Carroll of Brooklyn. The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Byrne on Van Buren street, there being some forty guests present. The home was artistically decorated with autumn flowers. Following the wedding breakfast the bride and groom left for a honeymoon trip that will include New York city, Atlantic City and Washington. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Byrne will make their home in a newly furnished apartment at No. 23 Main street. The bride is a Kingston High School graduate and has been connected with the State of New York National Bank where she made many friends. The groom has been a student at Columbia Memorial Art School. Both of the young people have many friends whose good wishes they will carry into their new home.

DECLARES KING VICTOR EMMANUEL WILL ABDICATE

Brussels, Sept. 28 (AP).—The newspaper Observateur, published in Brussels by Italian emigres, says that King Victor Emmanuel will abdicate as soon as the Italian chamber of deputies adopts the newly-projected law making the Grand Fascist Council a part of the official government.

The paper says that the present king will sign the new law and dispose of parliament and that a new king will summon a new parliament and take oath to observe the new constitution.

The new king, says the paper, will not be Prince Humbert, the present heir apparent, but will be the Duke of Apulia, the Duke of Aosta's son, who recently was married to the Duchess de Guise.

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP).—It reminded the courtroom of the song, "Which Switch is the Switch, Miss, for Ipswitch? Its the Ipswich Switch Which I Desire."

The man's name was Stopall—William Stopall. The charge was failure to stop at a stop street.

"I stopped him," said officer Reiter, "because he didn't stop at the stop sign. I always stop all that don't stop at the stop streets."

"With a name like yours," said the court, after fixing a fine, "you should stop at the stop spots. Officers are instructed, Mr. Stopall, to stop all non-stoppers. I trust we may count upon your stopping not stopping."

"I'm stopped," said Stopall, feelingly.

ASKS $100,000 DAMAGES FROM KINGSTON RESIDENT

Papers have been served and filed in an action to recover $100,000 damages brought by William McDermott of New York against Henry Spindler of Kingston, according to the Poughkeepsie Post. Attorney Grant M. Spindler represents McDermott who was a patient in the Beers Sanitarium at Poughkeepsie, recovering from injuries it is alleged he sustained on or about July 31, through the truck of defendant striking him as he was walking along the highway near Kingston.

CURTIS CONTINUES DESPITE "RAW THROAT"

Oklahoma City, Sept. 28 (AP)—In the last of his campaign speeches Senator Charles Curtis, the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee is going ahead determinedly with the busy program mapped out for him in Oklahoma, despite a "raw throat" which was aggravated yesterday by a 100-mile automobile trip over dusty roads.

Two speeches will be the schedule for today—the first here this morning at the State Fair and tonight one at Lawton. Dozens of cities have gone by the board with the senator in response to requests of the friends in this state, and yesterday he spoke out of doors and inside. He made a half dozen talks in as many cities. He came down into the state from Missouri.

A son of the Kaws, "Charlie" Curtis, as he is known down here, is receiving a hearty welcome. Pretty Indian girls, wrapped in their brightly colored blankets, greet him with songs at almost every turn.

Last night at Okmulgee Ed. M. Frye, of Sallisaw, former state senator and former chief of the Cherokees, introduced the senator as "the Father of Oklahoma," and referred to his efforts in Congress on behalf of the Indians. A number of Indians sat on the platform of the Hippodrome Theatre, where the senator spoke.

Republican leaders of the state who have accompanied the senator on his tour of Oklahoma, give him most optimistic reports on the outlook for Republicans here this year.

CHARGED WITH STEALING $13,000 FROM U. S. MAIL.

Buffalo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Postal inspectors early today arrested George F. Aberth, 25, of Buffalo on a charge of stealing $13,000 from the United States mail 12 months ago. Aberth, formerly was employed as a substitute mail clerk.

Inspectors charge that on August 15, 1927, Aberth, then assistant to the mail clerk on a train leaving Pittsburgh, Pa., removed the package of currency from a sack. The money was being sent by the Pittsburgh Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank to the Union Deposit Bank at Arnold, Pa. The employe resigned from the service a short time after the theft was reported.

Aberth will be held here until the Federal Court orders the case transferred to the Western District Court of Pennsylvania. The charge, Federal officers say, will be stealing registered matter and transporting stolen property from one state to another. Each offense carries a maximum penalty of five years in Federal prison.

Aberth has a wife and three children.

LINDBERGH PILOT FOR AIRPLANE PASSENGERS

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 28 (AP)—The commercial airways called again today to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

A dozen passengers who had booked passage to Chicago did not know in advance that they were to have a New York-to-Paris pilot at the controls when their tri-motored plane took off today.

Colonel Lindbergh flew here last night from Chicago, accompanied by Major Thomas G. Lanphier, and later said he planned to fly the Northwest Airways tri-motored plane back to Chicago.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Sept. 28 (AP)—A dispatch from the Quito correspondent of the newspaper El Universa says that Provisional President Isidro Ayora has been excommunicated by the Archbishop of Quito because of a decree issued yesterday authorizing boards of assistance to sell former church lands.

The excommunication also would extend to those who purchase or rent properties which previously belonged to the church and now known as being in "dead" hands.

FOUR CHARGED WITH POURING HOT TAR ON KNITTER

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 28 (AP)—Police announced today that they had arrested the four men who kidnaped and poured hot tar over Harold Hendrickson, Allen-A Company knitter. One of the men confessed, they said.

The man who confessed, police said, is Elmer F. Hackbart, 21, of Bristol. In the confession, authorities said, he named Earl M. Steele, 21, Oliver Hanbolic, 21, and Jewitt Jones, 21, of Kenosha as his accomplices. He was unable to give the name of the fifth member of the kidnaping party.

All of the men arrested were formerly employed by the Allen-A Company, according to police. Several hundred employes of the Allen-A Company have not worked for several months following a disagreement over wages and working conditions.

SMITH $100 TOWARDS DISABLED VETERANS SALE

Minneapolis, Sept. 28 (AP)—An unsolicited donation of $100 by Governor Alfred E. Smith sent Minneapolis Chapter Disabled American Veterans off on a flying start in its annual "forget-me-not" sale yesterday.

After Owen Galvin, Chapter Commander, had pinned a special forget-me-not on his lapel, the Governor slipped a bit of paper into Galvin's hand, saying: "Hope this will start you off, boys—I hope the drive is a complete success."

When Galvin finally got clear of the crowd and unfolded the note he found it was a $100 bank note. He tried to get back to Governor Smith to thank him, but the crowd wouldn't let him through.

TUNNEY BUSY MAKING PLANS FOR WEDDING

Rome, Sept. 28 (AP)—Gene Tunney arrived in Rome from Genoa today and one of the first things that developed was the possibility that his marriage to Miss Mary Josephine Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., may not take place at Sorrento after all.

The wide publicity which dispatches from Sorrento saying that the marriage would take place at "The House of Tasso" has received, has made the former champion feel that it would be quicker and quieter to be married in a small parish church in a big city such as Rome or Naples instead of at the romantic spot on the famous Bay of Naples.

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 28 (AP)—Despite opposition by several ministers and laymen, the Los Angeles Presbytery in annual convention yesterday passed a resolution opposing the presidential candidacy of Governor Alfred E. Funeral Services For Storm Victims

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 28 (AP).—Plans were made here today for a simple funeral service to be held Sunday for Florida's storm dead.

Members of the City Ministerial Union met yesterday at the First Methodist Church and appointed eight of its body to conduct the service, which will be held over the graves of more than 700 storm victims buried at Woodlawn Cemetery here. Rites will be conducted for those buried there, for those buried elsewhere and for those whose bodies are unfound along the devastated shores of Lake Okeechobee.

Two services will be held. The first will be for white people and the other, to be conducted later and by negro clergymen, will be for negro victims.

Under present plans the first funeral dirge will be played by the city band, the opening hymn will be sung by a mass choir from all the city churches and the invocation will be said by Rev. Charles G. Dilworth of the Norwood Baptist Church.

A scripture passage will be read by Rev. John G. Strandley of Wagg Memorial Methodist Church and a brief address will follow by Rev. Charles H. Bolton of the First Baptist Church.

The commitment service will be conducted by Rev. William A. Cooper of the First Methodist Church. Prayer will be said by Rev. John H. Minges of the Church of Christ, and the benediction will be by Rev. E. A. Lindsey of the Memorial Presbyterian Church.

Leading the choir will be Rev. Charles W. Pusey of the Union Congregational Church. Rev. A. M. Depew will supervise the musical program.

BUS OWNERS SEEK ROUTE THROUGH TOWN OF LLOYD

J. A. DuBois, owner of the Diamond D. Bus Lines of Marlborough, and Harry Elliott of Highland filed an application with the Public Service Commission to extend their bus lines through the town of Lloyd to the town of New Paltz. If granted permission they agree to give patrons hourly service in either direction daily between 6:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. More busses would be put on which would allow establishing a regular schedule. A public meeting will be called in the near future for the purpose of hearing any objections to the applications. Van Gonsic Brothers of the Arrow Bus Line now are operating between the Highland Ferry and New Paltz, but only a few trips are made a day.

Dr. Shahan to Preach Sunday.

The Rev. George A. Shahan, district superintendent, will preach at the Clinton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church on Sunday morning, September 30. In the evening the pastor will occupy the pulpit and deliver the fourth sermon on the Scenes and Character in Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress. The evening service will begin at 7:30.

Kantrowitz's Improvements.

The D. Kantrowitz clothing store on North Front street is undergoing several improvements. An oil burner is being installed by the Kingston Automatic Co. which necessitated the tearing up of the sidewalk, and the sporting goods department, which has grown too large for its present quarters, is being enlarged.

Dr. Boeve to Speak at Bethany.

In the absence of the Rev. J. B. Steketee, Dr. Lucas Boeve will conduct the week day prayer meeting at Bethany Chapel tonight at 7:30. Mr. Steketee is expected back again for the Sunday evening service.

HEISELMAN INVITED TO DINNER FOR SPAFFORD

Conrad J. Heiselman, past commander of Kingston Post, chairman of the local national convention committee and New York state delegate to the tenth annual American Legion convention to be held at San Antonio, Texas, in October, has received an invitation from Governor Dan Moody of Texas to attend a dinner in honor of National Commander Edward E. Spafford on Monday, October 8.

The governor's dinner will be given in the St. Anthony Hotel, one of San Antonio's most prominent hostelries, and many distinguished guests will sit at table with Commander Spafford and the executive of the Lone Star state. Mr. Heiselman feels highly honored that he will be able to attend the dinner in honor of Mr. Spafford.

National Commander Spafford was a guest of Kingston Post at a dinner in the Governor Clinton Hotel last winter, when he made an address that is still being talked of by local Legionnaires. Not alone did he make a lasting impression on all who attended the dinner, but created warm friendships with Kingston Post members that have continued ever since.

THE
SHOE

So much swank and swagger has been built into the Arch Preserver Shoe that men choose it solely for its smartness — often without even knowing its name. Then they discover it has the easiest, most delightful feel of any shoe they ever have worn.

The hidden difference is in the natural tread base with its arch bridge that prevents sagging and straining, its support for the metatarsal arch, and its flat inner sole that lets muscles, nerves, and blood-vessels function freely.

You'll enjoy a new sense of comfort in the smart-looking Arch Preserver Shoe even though you never had a foot ache. And if you are foot-weary, it will give your feet a treat.

Hardboiled Bill

In the ordinary way Cottonwood Gulch was a peaceful town, although it was situated in the far West.

But one day a bad man came galloping into the town. He thundered up to the main hotel, flung himself from his foaming steed and strode into the bar.

"I'm Hardboiled Bill!" he roared as he flourished his two guns in the air. "I'm crazy, and looking for trouble!"

Not So Nice

The comedian and the leading lady stood in the observation car, admiring the scenery.

"What a beautiful sunset! said the leading lady, dreamily.

"Yes," laughed the comedian, "it reminds me of your exquisite complexion."

"Ah, how kind! Because it is such a beautiful pink and white?"

"No, because it is swiftly fading."

Real Fun

Wealth is not all in this old vale of tears and laughter, or anywhere else so far as we know, and it often seems to us that the people who build the grand new house in the fashionable suburb don't get nearly as much fun out of it as their humble friends, who criticize it from turret to foundation stone, from stem to gudgeon and in all its ramifications, and that without one cent of expense.—Ohio State Journal.

Getting Rid of Moths

It is the common opinion that the presence of moths in upholstered furniture requires either the renovation of the furniture at some expense or the discarding of the piece. Moth balls and other common methods seem singularly futile in discouraging moths, once they have ensconced themselves in upholstered furniture. Yet there is one simple way of getting rid of them. Burn old cigarette and cigar stubs under the couch, using great care, of course. The fumes, going up into the couch, prove so distasteful to moths that they either leave or are overcome by the fumes leaving the upholstered furniture entirely free of these pests.

The Important Part

"We had a wonderful trip! We saw snow-crested summits leaping towards the cerulean heavens; we saw foaming torrents raging through the bottoms of shadowy canyons; we looked down from beetling crags into the depths of limpid lakes; we traversed sylvan glades shot with fi[illegible] of golden sunlight; we—"

"How many miles t[illegible] the gallon did you get?"

Diets on the Brain

Within the heads of some of my patients, said the old physician, there is a jumble of half knowledge and fallacies and fads and fancies stored away in the section labeled diet.—Woman's Home Companion.

Biological Note

Nature produces rabbits faster than Hons because of their greater humility, but it's yet too early for the proletarian class to show results.—Rimini, Ham News.

Hose for His Wives

Paris.—The sultan of Morocco, visiting Paris incognito, spent four hours in one of the biggest department stores where he purchased, among other things, 400 pairs of silk stockings. Paris is wondering how many wives he has.

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Sept. 28 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets.)—State cabbage values were stronger today. Receipts were moderate and demand fairly active. Jobbing business at various terminals on bulk stock was at $40-$45 per ton on domestic type, and $45-$48 on the Danish.

Carrot receipts from the western part of the state were light. Trading was moderate and prices averaged a shade higher in a trifle firmer market. Sales on unwashed muckland stock were reported at $1.65 per bushel basket. Washed carrots peddled out at $2-$2.25.

Arrivals of western and central New York peaches were more plentiful. The market closed weaker with demand confined to fancy fruit. The best Elberta peaches sold at $2-$2.50 per bushel basket. Some extra selected stock commanded as high as $2, while some pale colored fruit worked out as low as $1.50.

Demand for prunes was generally slow. The market was more in the buyers' favor and prices tended downward. Half bushel baskets jobbed out at $1.25. Idaho offerings were more attractive and brought as high as $1.50.

Hudson valley grapes were in less plentiful supply and with demand slightly better the market was about steady. A large volume of sales on Concords, Moore's Early and Worden grapes were made at 55-60 cents per twelve quart basket. California black juice grapes sold slightly higher. Lugs of about 20-24 pounds wholesaled at 67½ cents to $1.60.

Price changes on upstate New York celery were unimportant. Supplies were moderate, but trading continued limited. Most sales on offerings in the rough ranged from $1.50-$2 per two-thirds crate. Occasionally fancy realized $2.25-$2.50. Unattractive and green stock brought 75c-$1.25.

Realtors Plan Better Service

A meeting of the Kingston Real Estate Board was held Thursday evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Broadway at which time routine matters were passed upon and the members of the board discussed matters of interest to realtors.

The board voted to contribute $25 to the Red Cross hurricane relief fund, feeling that the urgency of the appeal for assistance was one which should be responded to by all. The contribution made by the association was in addition to any personal contribution which individual members might make.

There was a discussion in regard to the necessity of closer cooperation between members of the Real Estate Board and the buyers and sellers of real estate. The matter of advertising to bring to the public the aims and ideas of the Realtors was talked over and a plan is under way to carry out this program whereby through closer cooperation better service can be rendered by the Real Estate Board members to people listing properties.

There was nearly 100 per cent attendance of members of the board present at the meeting.

Meeting at Polish School Hall.

The Children of Mary Sodality of the Immaculate Conception Church will hold a meeting at the school hall this evening at 7 o'clock. All members are requested to be present. Miss Frances Lucas is the president and Miss Helen Janeczek the secretary.
